Stung by Rebuke of Prime Minister Pearson

Angry de Gaulle Flies Home

Text of Statement By Prime Minister

"I am sure that Canadians in all parts of our country were pleased when the president of France received such a warm welcome in Quebec.

"However, certain statements by the president tend to encourage the small minority of our population whose aim is to destroy Canada; and, as such, they are unacceptable to the Canadian people and its government.

"The people of Canada are free. Every province of Canada is free. Canadians do not need to be liberated. Indeed, many thousands of Canadians gave their lives in two world wars in the liberation of France and other European countries.

"Canada will remain united and will reject any effort to destroy her unity.

"Canada has always had a special relationship with France, the motherland of so many of her citizens. We attach the greatest importance to our friendship with the French people. It has been, and remains, the strong purpose of the government of Canada to foster that friendship.

"I hope that my discussions later this week with General de Gaulle will demonstrate that this purpose is one which he shares."

'Departure Understandable . . . Circumstances Regretted'

His statement follows:

"The Canadian government has been informed that General de Gaulle is not coming to Ottawa as planned and will be returning immediately to Paris by air after the completion of today's program in Montreal.

"General de Gaulle's decision to cut short his visit to Canada is understandable under the circumstances. But those circumstances, which are not of the government's making, are greatly to be regretted."

Lionel Chevrier, commissioner general for visits of heads of state, will be on hand to say "Goodbye" to General de Gaulle when he flies from Montreal to France.

FINAL SALUTE in Canada was extended French President Charles de Gaulle this morning by students of Montreal University dressed as 17th century French marines. It marked the windup of de Gaulle's Canadian tour before his departure later today for home.

SEPARATISTS DEMONSTRATE AT CITY HALL

MONTREAL (CP)—Quebec separatists today demonstrated among more than 1,000 persons who gathered in front of city hall as French President de Gaule wound up a morning tour of some of Montreal's landmarks.

Gen. de Gaulle waved from his limousine to the swelling crowd at city hall. At least three signs of a separatist group, le Rassemblement de l'Independence Nationale, were held high.

Small groups chanted "Quebec libre,, and "on veut de Gaulle" Free Quebec, we want de Gaulle. Shouts of "Quebec for Quebecers" were also heard.

No Apology For Remarks

Times News Services

MONTREAL — French President Charles de Gaulle, displaying a majestic calm in the eye of the political hurricane he had brewed in Canada, flew home this afternoon after abruptly cancelling a scheduled visit to Ottawa and a meeting with Prime Minister Pearson.

The 76-year-old French president departed in his personal DC-8 jet after four days of a scheduled five-day visit during which his endorsement of French-Canadian separatist sentiment brought a sharp, formal rebuke from Pearson.

President de Gaulle, obviously angered, announced cancellation of the remainder of his Centennial state visit to Canada 15 hours after he was publicly censured.

De Gaulle fired a few parting salvoes at a lunch in the Montreal city hall, the site of his climatic shouting of "Long live a free Quebec" which led to Pearson's reply that Canada did not need to be liberated.

"There has been a sort of comprehension in this trip that neither you or I could avoid," de Gaulle told an audience which included Montreal Jean Drapeau and Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson.

"It was elementary. We were seized by it. I think it is necessary to go to the bottom of things where the destiny of a people is involved—French-Canadian or Canadian French as you wish—to go to the bottom of things is the only policy that will help us."

Preferable to Cancel Ottawa Trip

Prime Minister Pearson in Ottawa, following a cabinet meeting this morning, said that "General de Gaulle's decision to cut short his visit to Canada is understandable under the circumstances but those circumstances, which are not of the government's making, are greatly to be regretted."

De Gaulle himself said nothing publicly of why he had cut short his state visit but a French spokesman said:

"I may confirm that, on account of the stand taken by the Prime Minister of Canada, it has been held preferable to cancel the Ottawa trip and proceed to Paris."

De Gaulle's manner at the airport was calm and measured but he made no apology and, in fact, said obliquely that the tempest over his speeches was of no consequence in the long view of things.

"My wishes are with you as I leave," he concluded. "I would like when I have left that you keep the idea that de Gaulle in Quebec, a Quebec master of itself, can have contributed to your progress."

The only member of the federal government to see de Gaulle off was Lionel Chevrier, the commissioner general for state visits. Mayor Drapeau and Premier Johnson bade the president and Madame de Gaulle goodbye with only a crowd of a few hundred, mostly newsmen and airport employees, looking on.

Mr. Pearson declined to answer any reporters' questions after the long cabinet meeting. He walked quickly to his car waiting outside Parliament Hill's East Block.

"I haven't had much time for rest," he said with a wry grin.

The statement was issued by his office minutes later.

Decision Was No Surprise

The cabinet reaction was one of general regret and sadness, said a cabinet source. But the general's decision had not come as a complete surprise.

Trade Minister Winters said there was some expectation in the cabinet the president might avoid Ottawa after Mr. Pearson's Tuesday night rebuke.

The trade minister hoped Franco-Canadian relations, however, would remain friendly. He said he "can't imagine" the incident having a detrimental effect on trade relations.

Mr. Winters said that the reaction of the Canadian people, as received in Ottawa, semed to be "overwhelmingly against" an apparent intervention by the French president into a matter of internal Canadian interest.

The general said in Montreal Tuesday night, after Mr. Pear-

Happy to Have Helped Quebec . . . de Gaulle

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Bureau

MONTREAL — President Charles de Gaulle's response late Tuesday to a diplomatic rebuke by Prime Minister Pearson sharpened the direct confrontation between the two leaders.

After Mr. Pearson said that statements by President de Gaulle encouraging Quebec separatism were "unacceptable to the Canadian people and its government," the president took the first opportunity that offered itself to say that he was very happy with what he believed his Quebec visit had achieved.

"Neither you nor I have wasted out time," he told Premier Daniel Johnson at a dinner ending his three full days in Quebec.

"Perhaps something has happened," he said.

And he added that "if on this occasion the president of the republic has been able to be of use to the Frenchmen of Quebec he will be very deeply happy."

Federal cabinet ministers, including External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who had been on the original guest list, did not attend the dinner in France's Expo pavilion in honor of the government of Quebec.

Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick stayed away as well after issuing a statement criticizing de Galle for encouraging separatism while he was a guest in Canada.

And he endorsed a favorite separatist slogan by shouting "Vive le Quebec Libre" (Long Live Free Quebec) to a crowd of delighted separatist demonstrators in Montreal Monday.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the dinner, from which all reporters were excluded, Premier Johnson made in a less precise form many of the points General de Gaulle had been making in his emotional meetings across the province with the people of Quebec.

CULT OF LIBERTY

Johnson's text, which had been distributed to the press before General de Gaulle's arrival in Quebec, said that Quebec's people had been faithful to their Franch language and culture against efforts made to mislead them "sometimes in brutal fashion, and

POLICE SAY BULLET FIRED AFTER SPEECH

The Montreal Matin, this city's French-language morning newspaper, came out in a front page story claiming the bullet whizzed past de Gaulle's head and lodged itself in the stonework of city hall.

However, a spokesman for the police department said the bullet was fired from directly below the fourth floor, 100 feet to the right of where the French president made his speech.

Death Toll Now 33 In Detroit Rioting

By DON McKEE

DETROIT AP) — National guardsmen and police raked buildings and rubble - strewn streets with machine-gun and small-arms fire today as they battled elusive snipers on Detroit's riot-torn west side.

Dwindling rifle fire replaced the clatter of automatic weapons as the city's third night of racial terror ended.

Ten persons were killed by gunfire, some apparently by accident, as the toll of dead in two days and three nights of strife rose to 33.

Two city policemen and possibly five guardsmen were wounded in pitched battles frequently sparked by the single report of a small weapon or the whine of a bullet.

A national guard tank rumbled over cars drawn across a street in one area and poured bursts of .50-calibre machine-gun bullets into the darkness for more than half an hour after scattered shots struck its side.

HALT TANK

Several blocks away a single shot from a small-calibre rifle halted another tank and within minutes 20 police cars, each carrying four men, pulled up at the scene.

Fusillades from a light machine-gun, rifles and shotguns drew occasional shots, but again the sniper or snipers got away.

Two Negroes were gunned down in their car by guardsmen at a roadblock near a fire department command post. A fire son's rebuke, that he would "rejoice profoundly" if his Canadian visit had been useful to French-language Quebecers. He spoke while proposing a toast to Quebec Premier Johnson, at a dinner boycotted by federal cabinet ministers and Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick.

. . . DE GAULLE LEAVING

Gen. de Gaulle was to have arrived on Parliament Hill for a formal welcome to Canada at 5:45 p.m., EDT, today, after having arrived in Quebec Sunday. He was to have left from Ottawa late Thursday after dinner tonight at Government House, a visit to Hull, talks and lunch with Mr. Pearson, and a French embassy reception today.

The departure decision came as no surprise in diplomatic circles and confirmed earlier unofficial reports in Montreal, after the president was told in no uncertain terms Tuesday by Mr. Pearson to stop making undiplomatic remarks while in this country.

An external affairs department official said it was important that the decision to quit Canada was made by the general himself and announced by the French embassy.

The 76-year-old visitor was advised by Prime Minister Pearson that some of his remarks have tended to encourage "the small minority" of separatists who would "destroy Canada."

"As such, they are unacceptable to the Canadian people and its government."

The Pearson statement fell well short of angry demands that Gen. de Gaulle's five-day visit be cancelled.

In fact it expressed the hope that the president would complete his Centennial tour and that cordial relations will continue between France and Canada.

De Gaulle arrived on the French cruiser Colbert at Quebec City Sunday, then drove to Montreal Monday along a 180-mile route ablaze with the French tricolor.

In Montreal, he compared scenes along the route to those of the liberation of France, spoke of a "liberated" Quebec, and used the politically potent separatist slogan:

"Long live free Quebec."

The Pearson statement said stiffly that thousands of Canadians died in two world wars to liberate France.

"Every province in Canada is free," it said. "Canadians do not need to be liberated."

Federal cabinet ministers supposed to meet Gen. de Gaulle on his arrival at Expo 67 Tuesday were called back to Ottawa, where the statement was drafted in two emergency cabinet sessions.

The French leader made no more abraisive remarks as he toured nine pavilions at Expo Tuesday, in sunny weather, with groups of placard-bearing separatists popping up constantly among the crowds.

Damage Had Already Been Done

However the damage had been done.

During his Expo visit minor problem to the hordes of policemen—RCMP, Montreal city police, Expo security and provincial police—was a few scattered slogan-shouters and placard-wavers.

At least 25 were arrested and were to appear in municipal court today on charges of disturbing the peace or carrying signs. A bylaw passed especially for Expo by the city of Montreal forbids demonstrations and placard-carrying on the site.

Among those arrested was French-speaking man who ran alongside the general's car at one point, shouting: "Assassin, assassin, assassin."

Later, an Algerian who arrived in Canada a few days ago was charged with disturbing the peace.

Nearly 1,000 telegrams had poured into Prime Minister Pearson's office within 24 hours of the Montreal speech, all protesting it. The prime minister's switchboard was kept busy with angry callers as well.

The French president made the decision late Tuesday night, some hours after the public rebuke by Prime Minister Pearson.

Maurice Couve de Murville, the French foreign minister, conveyed the news to Jules Leger, Canada's ambassador to France. Both men were travelling with the president.

Mr. Leger notified Marcel Cadieux, the undersecretary of state for external affairs and he called Mary Macdonald, special assistant to the prime minister at 1:30 a.m. EDT today.

Pearson Notified at 6 a.m.

It was decided not to awaken the prime minister, who had had a heavy day over the developing diplomatic crisis. He was telephoned by a staff member at 6 a.m. at his official residence in the capital.

General de Gaulle's last day in Quebec began this morning with a visit to Montreal's subway, after which he received a warm and dignified welcome by professors and students of the University of Montreal.

General de Gaulle praised the university for assuming "at the highest level of philosophy, letters and science the mission of maintaining and making flourish the French culture which otherwise would be submerged little by little by another."

Before he appeared on the steps of the university Hall of Honor, there were chants of "Free Quebec, de Gaulle has said it," by members of the Reassemblement Pour L'Independence Nationale.

Diplomats described the Pearson statement as "strongly worded" when it is realized that it was a stern public rebuke by the prime minister to the French president for the latter's statements while on Canadian soil. Drafting the roughly worded statement, the Canadian cabinet had to take into regard that if it was "too tough" the unpredictable general might leave Canada in a huff and take the French ambassador with him.

MEDICINE HAT (CP)—The Quebec member of parliament for St. Denis, Marcel Prud'homme, has predicted that Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec will call an election as a direct result of President de Gaulle's statements in Montreal.

The Liberal MP said Premier Johnson will try to capitalize on de Gaulle's free-Quebec statements and would make anti-federalism a main election issue.

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean Marchand, federal minister of manpower and immigration, today called on President de Gaulle to "tell us how to replace the $10,000,000,000 worth of American investment in Quebec . . .' which would allow us our independence, and a great thing will have been accomplished."

FREDERICTON (CP) — Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick cancelled a trip to Montreal where he was to attend a dinner in honor of President Charles de Gaulle. He said his presence at a dinner attended by de Gaulle could be interpreted as "a condonation of the general's behavior . . . and interference in the domestic affairs of our country."

MONTREAL (CP) — Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec said Tuesday he found nothing alarming in the "vive le Quebec libre" comment of President de Gaulle of France. New Terrorist Bombings Panic Hong Kong Colony

By JOHN KIRKWOOD
Toronto Globe and Mail

HONG KONG—Desperate Communist terrorists have launched a vicious new offensive in this troubled British colony by hurling home-make bombs in the streets. The new wave of terrorism was described by a Hong Kong government spokesman as a "cowardly, callous, despicable campaign to kill and maim young school children and innocent citizens." More than a dozen people have been injured in the bomb throwings so far this week, several seriously.

In the latest terrorist attack nine people, including three school children, were wounded when a bomb exploded alongside a line of people waiting to catch a tramcar in Hong Kong Island's congested western district. They suffered head, arm and leg injuries and were rushed to hospital. The crude home-made bomb was stuffed inside an innocent looking straw doll which was hung on a traffic sign. An hour later a similar doll was spotted hanging from a traffic signal in Hong Kong's teeming central business area triggering panic among thousands of pedestrians thronging the area in the late afternoon.

FALSE ALARM

It turned out to be a false alarm. In other terrorist incidents in the last few days crude bombs have been hurled at police stations, buses, tramcars and one exploded in a quiet residential area outside the homes of British army officers' families.

The bombs are filled with gunpowder taken from firecrackers and some have been packed with jagged pieces of metal and broken glass. The outbreak of bomb throwings confirm police fears that what they call an Aden-type situation would break out here in the wake of the recent Communist rioting.

"The Reds have failed in everything they've tried so far," said one senior police officer.

"Now they are resorting to guerrilla tactics as we thought they would." Of today's bomb attack, another police officer said: "This is the most callous act yet to be conceived by the unfeeling minds of men intent on inflicting hurt without descriminating among their victims."

WINDSOR A REFUGE FOR DETROIT NEGROES

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Border restrictions were eased somewhat Tuesday as a measure of order was restored in Detroit.

About 5,000 commuters from Windsor were allowed to cross to Detroit by tunnel and the Ambassador Bridge to their jobs in the smoking, partly devastated city.

The tunnel bus service, which was cancelled Monday, was restored shortly after 7 a.m. Tuesday. Company spokesman said the buses were "going all the way uptown in Detroit. Everything is back to normal." But everything was not back to normal for everyone.

A United States imimgration official said it was "easier to get out of Detroit than to get in". Curious Canadians were being turned back at the U.S. side of the border if they could not show "good reasons" for entering Detroit.

Windsor itself has become a haven for "refugees" from Detroit. Police said many Detroit residents, mostly Negroes, have crossed the Detroit River in boats and now are staying with friends or in area hotels and motels.

BUT TROUBLE IN BRONX

Chant of Hail Marys Keeps Harlem Quiet

NEW YORK (AP) — Candles flickered where gunfire had flashed and the chant in the riot torn streets came slowly, reverently: "Hail Mary, full of grace, The Lord is with thee."

Calm almost was back in Spanish Harlem.

The voices Tuesday night were those of priests, nuns and 600 Puerto Ricans and their children who sang and carried hand-painted pictures of saints through the slum area that shook with violence for three straight days.

A bottle smashed at the feet of one of the marchers, teenagers clapped their hands rhythmically to upset them, and a policeman was struck on the arm by a rock. But the restrained mood of the procession, helped by a heavy rain squall, appeared to win the crowd. El Barrio — Spanish for the neighborhood — stayed nearly quiet.

The rioting was touched off shortly after midnight Saturday night when a Puerto Rican was shot and killed by off - duty patrolmen who said he tried to attack them with a knife.

Police Tuesday night hunted for a sniper who fired three wild shots, arrested a man who they said threw a fire bomb, and again faced barrages of bottles.

In the heavily Puerto Rican South Bronx, a fire bomb thrown through an elementary school window started a small blaze that was quickly extinguished. Later, a Puerto Rican was shot and killed nearby by a Negro policeman.

Before the marchers began their slow trip, the procession's organizer, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Robert Fox told them in Spanish: "If Christ had the courage to offer his head to a crown of thorns we can offer our heads to thrown bottles. . . ."

Two deaths have been counted in the riots—the worst in the city since 1964 when Negroes in central Harlem burned, looted and fought with police.

NEGRO RIOT VICTIMS LINE UP FOR FOOD

By DON McKEE

DETROIT (AP) — The old Negro man carried a burlap bag over his bent shoulders. He worked his way to the front of the line at the church on 12th Street.

"I want some milk," he said, his hand clenching the bag as though it might escape.

The food line stretched out the door and on to the lawn. A woman in a yellow blouse and khaki men's trousers held a large, pink shopping bag. A boy, about seven, pulled a red wagon with an empty basket and cardboard box in it. Others in the line clutched cardboard boxes or brown paper bags.

"We got the idea last night," said Rev. Robert L. Potts, chairman of the Virginia Park Rehabilitation Project which had collected food to dispense to residents of Detroit's west side, the area hit hardest by rioting that had killed more than 30 persons and injured hundreds.

THE VICTIMS

These were the other victims of the violence and plunder that had turned block after block of the west side into smoking ruins and wrecked stores, gaping emptily, windows shattered and smashed, shelves cleaned off or cluttered amid litter and debris.

Waldo Smith, senior warden of Grace Episcopal (Anglican) church, was helping hand out food.

"We've got a lot of people here that need help and we're trying to take care of them," he said.

A Negro woman walked up. "I heard you were giving away bread and I've got five kids at home and nothing to eat."

About 400 food stores were destroyed in the burning and looting, said Edward Deeb, executive director of the Food Dealers of Greater Detroit.

Food industry spokesmen said, however, that there is ample food available and no shortage would develop unless panic buying becomes general. Some stores were out of bread, milk and some kinds of meat.

Churches and other relief agencies are receiving food and clothing from such distant cities as Monroe, on the Michigan-Ohio border nearly 60 miles away, and from Marine City, about 50 miles to the northeast.

Limited Talks With Rhodesia Planned by U.K.

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson has authorized limited new talks with the Ian Smith regime of Rhodesia while at the same time suggesting there may have to be tighter curbs to block the flow of oil to Rhodesian frontiers.

Wilson told the Commons Tuesday that Premier Smith wants a review of the constitutional proposals made during the stormy voyage aboard the cruiser Tiger last December on the basis that they may become acceptable if certain changes are made.

Wilson said the British-recognized Rhodesian governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, has been authorized to enter into limited talks without commitment on either side.

Smith will continue to assert Rhodesia's self-declared independence and Wilson will continue to maintain that the white-minority regime is illegal while the talks take place. The Labor government also will continue to reserve its position on its decision that Britain will not grant official independence to Rhodesia without majority rule by the black Africans who outnumber the whites 20 to 1.

Wilson pointed out that there was no guarantee that even if "meaningful" agreements were reached, Smith would not be over-ruled by extremists in his regime as he apparently had been over-ruled after the Tiger talks.

However, Smith had indicated a readiness to accept the proposed constitution drafted aboard the Tiger.

Later, during questioning, Wilson said his government is fully aware of the realities of power in Rhodesia but it is not prepared to hand over the country to a fascist regime.

Rose's Will Upheld

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge has upheld Billy Rose's avoidance of taxes on the bulk of his estate.

Surrogate Judge S. Samuel Di Falco ruled Thursday that the late showman was within his rights in leaving most of his estate, estimated between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000, to a foundation bearing his name.

. . . 33 DEAD

With the new deaths, Detroit's riots were two short of being the costliest in terms of human life in recent U.S. history. Thirty-four died at Watts in 1965.

It already was the costliest in all other respects.

Injuries climbed to more than 1,000 with 280 in hospital. The latest estimate of damage from city officials today totalled $150,000,000 but they said property damage and business losses could reach $1,000,000,000.

New fires set by arsonists and looters boosted the total to 1,145. Arrests mounted to 2,623 with bail as high as $200,000 set for suspected snipers.

COSTLY MANPOWER

As bullets whined in the streets, the city faced another problem, potentially as costly—hundreds, perhaps thousands of refugees burned from homes or jobs.

Flash fires of racial upheaval leaped across the state with curfews and emergency conditions slapped on Grand Rapids, Saginaw, Flint and Pontiac, where two were dead.

In Detroit, battles were fought in a five - square - mile section where a routine police raid on a Negro night spot sparked the original rioting Sunday.

Machine-gun bullets spattered through apartment house windows six blocks west of the John Lodge Expressway which bisects the city from north to south.

Four adults and a baby were wounded.

VISITOR KILLED

Gunfire killed a woman guest at the Harlan House Motel. She was Helen M. Hall, a guest from Oakdale, Conn. She was white.

Three Negro youths were found dead of gunshot wounds at the Algiers Motel, 10 blocks north of the same area.

Fear gripped Saginaw today after police battled Negro rioters and snipers in a night of firebombings and looting.

At least eight persons were shot, including a woman and a soldier home on leave. More than 70 persons were arrested.

BRIDGES CLOSED

Mayor Henry Marsh, a Negro, ordered all bridges over the Saginaw River that divides the city closed for several hours during the height of the rioting. All policemen, firemen and auxiliary forces were mobilized.

In New York, young Puerto Rican toughs shouted oaths and hurled a bottle into a solemn candleleight funeral procession led by a Roman Catolic priest Tuesday as scattered violence erupted again in Spanish Harlem.

It was the fourth straight night of disturbances in the northeast Manhattan area.

Roblin Will Enter Race Likely This Weekend

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Premier Duff Roblin the "reluctant" candidate is reluctant no longer and is ready to enter the race for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative Party.

That is the word circulating here in Conservative Party circles. The Manitoba premier was in Montreal Wednesday to speak to the Kiwanis St. Laurent Club, a French-speaking organization.

After he has assessed the reaction to his speech and his popularity in the province of Quebec; Roblin is expected to make the formal announcement this weekend that he is officially in the contest. His speech in Montreal is one of a series he has been making in which he has dealt with national and international policies.

Some Conservatives thought that when Premier Robert Stanfield declared himself a candidate for the leadership, the Manitoba premier would quietly withdraw from the field. But the opposite has taken place.

Premier Roblin is now understood to be delighted at the formal entry of the Nova Scotia premier because of Stanfield's known close association with Dalton Camp, national president of the Progressive Conservative Party. And the word that Camp will actively campaign to assist Stanfield win the leadership has taken the "heat off" Roblin who had been tabbed by Progressive Conservative leader John Diefenbaker as "Camp's choice."

Now the Manitoba premier feels that label has been shifted to Stanfield. And having shaken off the Dalton Camp connection the Manitoba premier now feels, according to associates, that he is in a better position to seek the leadership and win the race.

Camp organized the meeting last fall which called for a re-assessment of Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership. That meeting degenerated into bitter wrangling between the pro-Diefenbaker and anti-Diefenbaker forces. Camp was labelled the "villain of the piece" by Diefenbaker supporters.

Newspaperman Dies

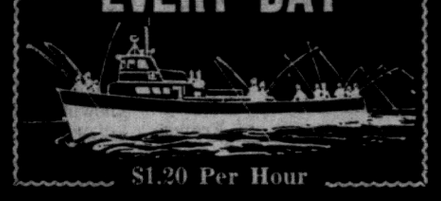

TORONTO (CP) — Robert K. Taylor, veteran newspaperman who retired from the Toronto Star last May 12, was found dead Tuesday in his bachelor apartment. Coroner Dr. Harvey Brown said Mr. Taylor, 56, died of a heart attack.

"I Learned How It Feels To Die"

"A little more than 24 hours ago . . . I learned what it is like to die. For a period of some minutes there had been no pulse, no blood pressure, no pronounced stirring of the heart." This man is telling about his "death" caused by a massive allergic onslaught. When his external awareness slipped away, an "internal awareness" took over. Read this amazing true story in August Reader's Digest; the true story of a man who came back from clinical death. Read of his unwise self-medication . . . his frightening symptoms, his emergency treatment and his incredible return from death. It's in August Reader's Digest — on sale now.

No Friend of Canada

THE ABRUPT DEPARTURE OF President de Gaulle from Canada today, under a cloud of reproach from the government and people of this country for his inexcusable interference in a domestic problem, has tragically ended what should have been one of the highlights of our Centennial Year celebrations.

This was the perhaps inevitable climax to the incredible series of informal remarks and formal speeches by the French head of state which could be interpreted only as an attempt to encourage the dismemberment of Canada in the hope of binding the French-speaking people of this country to a motherland which abandoned them two centuries ago.

His behavior may well heighten tension between the French-speaking people of Canada and the non-French by focusing publicity on the separatist minority. This, however, may not be all bad since it could have the effect of bringing home to the majority of French-speaking Canadians the basic fact that they are Canadians and not Frenchmen.

The tragedy of the situation is further deepened by the fact that one of the great figures of our age may have effectively destroyed himself as a credible world leader—in the twilight of his years when he should be reaping honors instead of reproaches.

There is no doubt that when Prime Minister Pearson characterized the general's behaviour as "unacceptable" he was speaking for the nation. Wisely, however, the Prime Minister kept open the door for reconciliation by stating that he hoped his discussions with the President would confirm a mutual desire to strengthen friendship between France and Canada.

Instead of accepting the hand of friendship President de Gaulle—knowing that he had been formally asked to refrain from interfering in our affairs—chose to turn to Quebec Premier Johnson at Montreal and say: "Neither you nor I have wasted our time . . . Perhaps something has happened . . . If on this occasion the President of the Republic has been able to be of use to the Frenchmen of Quebec, he will be very deeply happy."

These were not the words of a friend of Canada.

And so to Violence

A DOZEN YEARS AGO, DR. Martin Luther King wrote: "Non-violence is the method which seeks to implement just law by appealing to the conscience of the great, decent majority who through blindness, fear, pride or irrationality have allowed their consciences to sleep." And for 10 years, largely under the leadership of Dr. King and others like him, the Negroes of the United States in the main adopted non-violence as the strategy through which they would gain their full rights as citizens; and for much of that time there did seem to be a stirring of the conscience of "the great decent majority."

However, even before the massive riot in Watts two years ago, the strategy of non-violence was being undermined by younger, more radical, impatient and disillusioned Negro leaders who felt the stiffening resistance to demands for equality from the white community as the civil rights movement spread from the countryside of the South to the urban ghettoes of the North. "Black Power" was the cry these new leaders raised and while the slogan means different things to different people it was symptomatic of a new militancy, a determination not to ask but to demand and if necessary to take. It is a bitter irony that Black Power advocates have gone full circle and now counsel the Negro to get out of white society, to deliberately segregate themselves in communities of their own choosing and own making.

But along with this new restlessness there has come an increase in lawlessness which has culminated in the several score deaths and hundreds of millions of dollars worth of property damage in Detroit this week and in Newark, Rochester, Cincinnati and other cities earlier. These disturbances have taken on the tone not of race riots but of full-scale insurrections against the civil authorities, to the point where President Johnson had to send in federal troops in response to a request from Governor Romney of Michigan.

As the distinguished writer for the New York Times, Mr. James Reston, pointed out the other day, none of this was unexpected. The disorder in American cities is but part of the "disorder of the age"—the result of the vast gulf between what is possible to provide a decent life for all people and what is actually done. Hunger, disease and ignorance are not inevitable, the outcasts of the world are learning, but intolerable.

"It is not the fault of one administration or one generation alone," Mr. Reston wrote, "but this convulsion of the cities and the new states is undoubtedly the greatest menace to the peace and order of the world today, and it is not being given first priority by any of the modern industrial states it threatens. There is a vast and defective sense of scale in the policies of the northern industrial countries . . . They identify the problems but do not adopt policies that are equal to them."

Thus, in the United States, the response to the potentially explosive racial situation has been to cut back on the educational, housing and employment programs which might have averted the insurrections. Congress passes an anti-riot act but won't implement a plan to get rid of the rats which are a serious menace to the health of ghetto-dwellers. The President was forced to send the army into Detroit to put down violence which should never have occurred had the matter of priorities of action been faced squarely and not compromised.

Too Young to Know Danger

THE TENDER YEARS OF FOUR of the five victims of drowning accidents on the south end of the Island in the last six weeks adds particular poignancy to the tragedies which have occurred. Their ages were such that none could have recognized the dangers confronting each of them.

Some of the accidents could not have been prevented. But that is scant solace to parents who have been bereaved. Sympathy should be general for mothers and fathers.

The tragedies should, however, emphasize to our people in general the need for close supervision of all children close to the water—toddlers as well as those grown to boyhood. Any waters can be dangerous under certain circumstances; many of those around the coast and in lakes and streams are treacherous when they appear quite placid.

Because we have seacoast and fine lakes, we enjoy recreational amenities denied many other parts of the continent. But they are amenities which must be treated with respect unless the toll in lives already suffered here this summer is to increase—and the respect for the hazards must be shown by mature people who may be able to guide the very young not yet old enough to understand the dangers.

FROM OUTLOOK

By JAMES H. GRAY

Water, and a Problem, for Saskatchewan

WITH the completion of the Gardiner Dam across the South Saskatchewan River last week, a dream did come true for the people of Saskatchewan, a fact every orator within earshot has mentioned at least once. The vision of a dam built across the river to provide irrigation water for the parched heart of Palliser's arid triangle has tantalized the west since the first days of settlement. It became a political cause celebre 30 years ago when endless drouth and blowing dust storms threatened to depopulate the prairies.

Gray

The achievement of the dream naturally called for a suitably boisterous demonstration. It was celebrated here with a parade and singing and dancing in the streets. There was an emotion choked official opening at the dam site followed by a carnival of entertainment far into the night. Then they did it all over again at the town of Elbow on the next day.

To the celebration came thousands of farmers from all over Saskatchewan. A plane full of all-party politicians and top civil servants came from Ottawa. The top on-the-spot officials who ram-rodded the construction job were all here. On the speakers stand was Prime Minister L. B. Pearson whose party was destroyed in Saskatchewan because it refused to build the dam. There was Rt. Hon. J. G. Diefenbaker who gave it top priority when he defeated the Liberals in 1965. There was Hon. T. C. Douglas who, as premier of Saskatchewan, negotiated the agreement that got the project started.

Non-Partisan

Party politicians all, but none came as a party politician. Mr. Diefenbaker was almost tearful in his praise of Mr. Douglas and the late J. G. Gardiner for whom the Liberals named the dam. In his praise of Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Douglas was as eloquent as he has ever been. Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan, a professional abominator of socialism, expressed his esteem for Mr. Douglas by announcing that the immense recreational park he is going to build will be named for Mr. Douglas.

As for the dam itself, it is spectacularly impressive. When finished, it will be one of the world's largest earth filled dams. It took eight solid years to build and cost $117,000,000, of which Saskatchewan will pay $25,000,000. It took 100,000,000 cubic yards of material, has an overall length across the top of three miles and a mile at the bottom. It towers 210 feet above the old river bed and backs up the river into a lake 145 miles long.

From any perspective, the Saskatchewan River project must rank with the St. Lawrence Seaway, Kitimat and Arvida in the catalogue of Canadian engineering triumphs. It is big and it is breath-taking to behold and cannot help but stir the emotions of its beholders. For taxpayers, one underlying fact makes it particularly impressive. The overall cost is within 15 per cent of what the Government engineers estimated when the job was figured a decade ago.

Power Development

From Lake Diefenbaker behind the Gardiner dam, the water will pour down penstocks to generate 187 megawatts of power for the Saskatchewan Power Commission. Irrigation ditches will carry water to irrigate some 200,000 acres of farm lands. And artificial rivers and series of lakes will be used to supply water to industrial and domestic consumers in the water-short country north and east of Saskatoon.

The entire project is the handiwork of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration of the Department of Agriculture — the justly celebrated P.F.R.A. The Saskatchewan river project is the crowning achievement in its 32-year history. The P.F.R.A. was set up by the Bennett administration in 1935 to save the livelihood of 900,000 people within the Palliser triangle.

The dust bowl years of the Dirty Thirties were very much on the minds of the farmers of Saskatchewan at the dam ceremonies for the worst drouth in half a decade was gripping the county. But the drouth of 1967 was a far cry from the drouth of 1937. Drouth out here is no longer marked by black blizzards and skydarkening insect plagues. The P.F.R.A. and the Dominion Experimental Farms scientists have taught western farmers how to lick soil erosion and grow profitable crops under the semi-arid conditions that usually prevail within the Palliser Triangle.

These lessons have been so well taught that the Saskatchewan River project has a problem on its hands before it even gets into the business. In an area that once cried for irrigation water, irrigation is a dirty word to many of the farmers.

The first target area for irrigation is a 40,000 acre block in the Broderick-Outlook district by the east side of the dam. But so stubbornly do the farmers on the land resist irrigation that only a handful of contracts for water have yet been signed. Farm opposition has forced the Saskatchewan Government, which will run the irrigation systems, to change policies several times. Still the hard-core of opposition remains unconvinced.

When they can make a decent living dry farming, as they claim they have been able to do for the last decade, the aging wheat growers see no point in loading up with debt that will take another decade to pay out. It will cost most of them upwards of $10,000 to install irrigation and they are not having any. Only the younger generation of farmers, who are preparing to take over the land being made available, seem willing to take a chance on irrigation.

But if the farmers no longer want or need irrigation, neither does the Gardiner dam any longer have such an imperative need for irrigators. Saskatchewan will soon need all the electric power it can produce. More and more water is going to be channelled into industrial and domestic consumption miles from Diefenbaker Lake.

Potash was hardly known as an industrial potential when the dam was started. Today it is creating a whole string of prosperous new towns around Saskatoon. Tomorrow potash will account for as much railway tonnage out of Saskatchewan as wheat. Without the Gardiner dam, there would be no water for the potash industry or the armies of people employed in the industry.

There is a curious significance in this fact: The Gardiner dam was not yet completed when the first water was turned into the ditch that will take it to the newly created Blackstrap Lake from where it will flow this fall to the potash towns to serve their domestic and industrial needs.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

China Awaiting a Harvest—and Explosion

IN case you are beginning to think that midsummer madness is a localized affliction, the affairs of China are a useful corrective. As a light but far from meaningless hors d'oeuvre, let us begin with the numbered bank account of Chairman Mao Tse-Tung.

Alsop

A few days ago, the Chinese service of the Russian state radio began to broadcast the interesting news that Mao had secretly opened a numbered private bank account in Switzerland, to receive the stolen treasures of the Chinese people. The broadcasts added that Mao now had a special airplane permanently standing by to fly him to a foreign refuge whenever Peking got too hot for him.

Needless to say, the facts as stated deserve no credence whatever (although literally anything is possible nowadays, God knows!) Yet the mere transmission of such extraordinary charges by the official Soviet propaganda apparatus speaks volumes about Moscow's current view of the trend of events in Peking.

That trend has just been dramatically underlined by the all but incredible detention, in the great industrial centre of Wuhan, of Mao's police chief and number three aide, Hsieh-Fu-chih, and another key figure of the cultural revolution, People's Daily editor Wang Li.

Hsieh-Fu-chih and Wang Li had been in the far southwest in Yunnan province, where they tried, without apparent success, to put an end to the armed local resistance to the Maoists. Evidently they were unwise enough to stop in Wuhan en route to Peking, where the local military boss, Chen Tsai-tao, quickly placed them under house arrest.

With some difficulty, the release of Chairman Mao's two emissaries was at length negotiated, and they were able to fly onwards to Peking. Here they were greeted at the airport by every dignitary of the cultural revolution from Chou En-lai to Mao's termagant wife, Chiang Ching, as though they were returning from a mission of the greatest danger and difficulty.

It was as though all of official Washington turned out for a great airport welcome for Secretary of Defence Robert McNamara and the presidential secretary, Marvin Watson, who had been newly released from durance vile in the Sacramento stronghold of Gov. Ronald Reagan. That is how far things have now gone in China.

Or rather, it does not really show how far things have gone. For there are now at least three and probably as many as six major urban-industrial cities like Wuhan, where civil strife is open and continuous.

Public order has broken down there and fighting is continuous, with the Maoists seemingly losing ground in each new outbreak. Furthermore, the situation in this great centre of the Middle Yangtze River provinces, the most important in all China, have all, in greater or less degree, thrown off central government control.

Szechuan, with 60,000,000 people, is the richest, most populous and most self-contained of all the Chinese provinces; and Szechuan has apparently severed all but one of its rail contacts with the rest of the country. Only the rail line northwards through the mountains to Sian on the Yellow River, still remains open; and that line, one may guess, is only being left open on sufferance.

Transport Breakdown

All over China the breakdowns in rail transport are still continuing and even growing more severe. Instead of two-simultaneous major line breaks on any one day, the rule now seems to be about three major line breaks on any one day. And the breaks are being repaired less and less rapidly, often enduring for three or four days on end.

Just about every province has its tale of civil conflict. In several provinces, there are ominous complaints about peasants, who are armed with the weapons of the village militia, advancing to "the siege of the cities." The termagant, Chiang Ching, has spoken in blunt terms of "civil war." And meanwhile, the crucial harvest is ripening in the summer fields.

The harvest is the factor that is likely to usher in the next stage. In the conditions that now prevail in China, every village will try to keep the whole crop; and every county town and province capital will try to withhold from the centre such grain as they may manage to collect. One cannot see how this can be prevented, with the Maoists only claiming full control of four miserably poor provinces. But if it is not prevented, and there is widespread dearth in the cities, the stage of final explosion can all too easily be reached before Christmas.

Time To Be Canadian

We are now treated to the spectacle of Gen. de Gaulle voicing his pro-separatist views while a guest of Canada, while he made his remarks in Quebec where he was greeted by a splendid array of French and Quebec flags — but no Canadian.

I would suggest to our French-Canadian brothers that they 1, forget the plains of Abraham and 2, start calling themselves Canadians and not French-Canadians. The display in Quebec should give food for thought to those who seek to excuse the pro-separatists (declared or otherwise.)—"Canadian."

Enough

In Monday night's paper, I saw that de Gaulle is here paying Quebec a visit and I note the startling caption to some news; Seize Destiny Now Quebec urged.

It seems to me Canada has some right to ask President de Gaulle to pipe down, when he is allowed to be a visitor to Canada.

Where was de Gaulle when Hitler's troops invaded France and marched through to Paris with no opposition shown by the troops or people?

The British bled themselves white in finally stopping Hitler's dreams from materializing and the thanks de Gaulle showed was his opposition to the British people joining that European Common Market.

I think the federal government should tell de Gaulle we think he should get out, we have heard enough. — Harry Wyer, 234 Vancouver.

Western Common Market?

Britain still tries desperately to join the Common Market. Yet she gets turned down at each attempt to do so because of her ties with the Commonwealth.

Since this is the case, it seems to me we in Canada should make it easier for Britain to attain that goal. How? By joining the United States and South American states in a common market of our own.

In this way North and South America would be one solid block, as Europe will be when Britain is finally accepted in that market common to six European nations.—Progression.

What's In a Name?

May I, with a loud and ringing voice, proclaim that I am not the Mr. Goodchild referred to in a letter appearing in last Saturday's Times?

My friends might think that I care whether your excellent reporttr Mr. Mika is of British origin or not, whereas I don't. There are thousands of other things about which I worry, without adding the geographical position of Mr. Mika's entry into this troubled world to their number. To put it bluntly I don't care two hoots where he was born — I am only glad that he was, for I enjoy his vivid reporting.

I've met many really nice people who were born in all sorts of strange places; and, conversely, I've met many perfectly hateful people who were born in England. — Roland Goodchild, 1704 Beach.

Looking Back

From The Times of July 26, 1907.

A new Pacific Empress, larger and faster than any of the CPR steamers on the waters of the Orient, is the latest development of the Canadian Pacific enterprise, it was announced today.

Plans for the new vessel are now in preparation and a start in construction will be made at an early date.

Officials say the new ship will form an important addition to the fleet, and will prove a strong factor in the improvement of the mail service between Great Britain, Japan and China.

Planning Cities To Make Love In

By WOLF VON ECKARDT
The Washington Post

PRAGUE — This city proved an ideal setting for an international congress of architects. For in its melancholy beauty, Prague has many of the qualities that the modern city ought to aspire to.

The first of these is Prague's exceptionally successful meeting of landscape and cityscape. The two do not merge, really. Each somehow retains its identity to enchance the other.

The Moldau, that wide, magnificent river with its green island, swerves through the heart of this city of one million, and you are always aware of it. Man has not obliterated but artfully framed it.

This lesson was not lost as the architects from some 60 countries discussed "Man and the Landscape." While elsewhere there is much talk about megastructures and man-made space ship environments, the Prague conferees deemed respect for the natural setting of paramount importance.

And then there was Prague's cityscape, which in a way is far more dramatic than the landscape of which it is part. This is the oldest large city in Europe, first growing around the ninth century Prague Castle and then merging in the 14th century with the new town that Emperor Charles IV built.

The Czechs excelled in the cubist and constructivist style that flourished in the 1920s and gave rise to the likes of the Lever House on New York's Park Avenue and the international style that followed. But then came the Nazis, and after them the Soviets and bitter austerity, and all new building stopped. The only thing Prague was spared was bombing and, so far, freeways and glass boxes. The glass boxes — and some are quite good — are confined to the outskirts.

The visiting architects thus also received an architectural history course that is hard to match. They opened their congress in the great Gothic Vladislav Hall in the castle, made their headquarters in the enchanting baroque Wallenstein Palace with its lovely gardens, held meetings, saw exhibitions and wined and dined in public buildings and halls of just about every period and style down to Prague's version of London's wrought-iron Crystal Palace. And they wandered for miles, their cameras forever clicking, through an extensive object lesson in urban design.

Hundreds of city blocks are pierced by pedestrian passageways that go right through buildings, open into inner courts and alleys and sometimes delightful gardens and then meander through buildings again.

Some have small shops, cabarets, restaurants and even movie entrances in them. All are full of surprises: you suddenly come across an unsuspected little palace, or a fountain, or an inviting outdoor restaurant. The greatest surprise, however, is that these passages are safe at all hours.

Prague is a lively city. You are as likely to hear rock 'n' roll resounding from inside a Renaissance palace as you are to find a hat store or an elegant little bar in a Gothic town house. And it is a city of lovers.

The architects thoroughly enjoyed the sense of history and historic continuity which Prague's cityscape offers. For many of them, I believe, it was almost a rediscovery, for these were men facing the constant demand to design something new for a new technological age.

A Russian, V. D. Sterlingov, pronounced the preservation of historic architecture a matter of the greatest social importance. An American, Carl Feiss, stressed the need for lasting reminders of the continuity of man's evolution. But a Czech put it most succinctly when he urged that architects create cities "where young people want to come to make love."

Yet Prague, too, is in danger. Over the nearly 30 years since the Nazis occupied Czechoslovakia, the old buildings have been neglected.

Only in the last few years has Prague been allowed to begin the restoration of its old buildings in earnest. Now you see scaffolding everywhere. But many scaffolds are empty. There is a severe labor shortage and the effort doesn't rank high with the national economic planners. Only half of the goal of restoring 3,000 buildings a year can be met.

But what is being done is done extremely well. I am particularly impressed with the good taste with which the Czechs are remodelling old buildings. The new interiors are entirely modern.

White paint, glass and excellent lighting emphasize the essential forms and spaces of the old architecture and there is admirable attention to detail. Everything, from door knobs to the lettering of signs, is functional yet attractive and respectful of the old.

The plan for the revitalization of the city is equally sensitive yet up to date. Czechoslovakia now has one car for every 50 residents but the automobile tide will eventually rise and the only way to meet it, Prague's chief architect told me, is to improve public transportation.

The city has begun to put its excellent streetcar system underground. The proposed freeway that will traverse the city will have a rapid transit in the centre strip.

The plan, now slowly being implemented, calls for new housing around the periphery of the city and a gradual relocation of industry out of the centre. The problem here, as almost everywhere else, is to bring young wage-earners back into the centre.

Will Thailand Become Another Vietnam?

By KIM WILLENSON

NAKORN PHANOM, Thailand—The United States is so heavily involved in Thailand that unless it decides to retreat from Southeast Asia there is no question but that it will fight if Communist insurgency gets too strong for the Thais to handle.

According to U.S. officials, nearly 40,000 American servicemen are stationed in Thailand today.

Most of them are here as part of America's war in Vietnam. Relatively few are engaged in training the Thai forces as "advisors". No American forces participate in combat against Communist insurgents whose numbers are estimated at anything from 1,300 to 10,000.

The United States has spent billions of dollars to build and operate seven huge airbases and to construct other airfields across Thailand that could quickly be converted into military use.

From them, U.S. bombers, including B52s, take off to bomb the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos and targets in North Vietnam.

If the guerrillas should decide to attack these bases —and some of them are very vulnerable—the U.S. would have no choice but to defend them.

Of the U.S. servicemen in Thailand, 30,000 are in the air force, flying and supporting the air missions.

As for American servicemen involved in counter-insurgency here, it is a fact, despite official denials, that they have come under fire.

When 3 American Huey helicopters of the 606th air commando squadron provided "taxi service" for Thai troops in the field last year, it was claimed they never got near combat operations.

But four police colonels in Udorn and Nakora provinces and the governors of the two provinces say the helicopters were often close enough to the fighting to be fired upon and one was hit by ineffective rifle fire about 30 miles north of Sakhol Nakorn.

All told, there are at least 1,000 Americans involved in activities related to military counter-insurgency and the figure may soon rise to 2,000.

The U.S. effort in Thailand is about 80 per cent military and 20 per cent civilian.

A few months ago, a high official in Bangkok was asked why American counter-insurgency aid was so much for arms and so little for development. He replied.

Emphasis on Military

"I suppose that's because the American Congress won't vote for anything else. I doubt if anyone could get the money out of them for it."

As the result of the emphasis on military aid, problems which permit Communist propaganda to have appeal continue to exist.

The vast majority of Thai bureaucrats, soldiers and politicians are aware that peasants in northeastern Thailand have been short-changed by their government for 200 years and resent it. They are aware that the insurgency feeds on poverty and inept local government.

—$62 million on direct military aid.

—$14 million to convert the national police into a paramilitary force with heavy weapons and helicopters.

—$11 million to build rural roads.

—About $18 million into civil development programs such as improvement of agriculture, water supplies, eradication of malaria, rural electrification, health, education and local government reform.

The largest single civil activity is the accelerated rural development road-building program, which has been operating for two years. In the two most troubled provinces in the country, it has built 124 miles of all-weather roads—about one-fiftieth of what is needed to put every village on a highway. Only 15 to 20 per cent of the villages can be reached by any vehicle larger than an ox-cart during the rainy season.

The U.S. is sponsoring programs to improve the rice crop by eliminating plant diseases and improving fertilization. The average rice yield in the northeast runs about three-quarters of a ton per acre—compared with four tons in Japan.

But the U.S. program to treat foot rot, a rice plant disease, is likely to reach only one farmer in five in the two most threatened provinces. Pesticides will be lucky to get to one farmer in 20.

Fertilizer is desperately needed to improve the thin yellow soil of the northeast, but few farmers have enough capital to buy it.

Under an experimental program, co-operatives are being formed in which farmers guarantee one another against failure, increasing their credit-raising potential.

The experiment is reaching only 12,000 farmers in 14 counties in the northeast. To make it work throughout the area would require more capital than several times the amount the U.S. is spending on its entire civil program.

Aware of Dangers

One result of the aid outlay is that the American military is doing jobs which would normally fall under the civil program.

The 50-man civic action team of the 606th air commando squadron at Nakorn Phanom airbase is building schoolhouses, digging wells staffing medical centres, operating with mobile medical teams.

Sawat Meepein, governor of the province, was unable in a three-hour conversation to recall a single detail of the civil development program here,, but could recite facts, figures, tactics and strategy of the combined military-police program to suppress insurgents.

Yet he is aware of the danger of over-emphasizing the military program.

"It is not as bad as Vietnam yet," he says, "but if we don't hurry and get these people on our side, it will be very shortly."

The Other Side of the Hill Shouldn't Lose Its Appeal

By ART STOTT

The spirit is still relatively willing, but the knees sag at the suggestion that we walk in to see what's on the other side of the mountain.

The proposal comes regularly as we sit in indolence by the shore of Cigarmakers' Bay. Its sponsor is a vigorous young son-in-law devoted to the outdoors, who has seen far more of British Columbia's wilderness that I hope to see close to the ground, and whose appetite for fresh scenery is voracious.

Stott

My reaction is a deep sense of guilt. During a period of my agile youth, I followed an inadequately blazed trail, then overgrown with alders, over the hill and around the mountainside behind Behnsen's at Shawnigan to what are known as the "potholes". These are widenings in a creek that flows through the Sooke watershed and eventually makes its way to the city reservoirs.

When the children were small, this was a day's outing. We marshalled the small fry. They equipped themselves with canteens, lunches in small sugar sacks tied to their belts and short lengths of fishing line, complete with hooks. We crossed the lake by boat or canoe, struggled up a trail to a disused logging road, climbed it to a saddle and then beat our way through underbrush, infrequently seeing the piles of stone on old stumps that marked the route.

This was adventure for the children and the adults. You never knew when a youngster was going to step on a wasp's nest and add to the noise of our passage. There was always the chance, remote as it might be, of sighting a bear or a cougar—I never did—and there were old blow-downs to cross, fighting our way through branches, to the rough slope above the creek.

Perseverance, sturdy hiking, exhortations from the elders and the help of one member of the party who had covered the ground before, eventually brought us to a hay meadow, ringed by hills whose slopes were pallisaded with close-growing hemlock saplings.

When the party broke through, it reached a pond that was a reward for all the effort. The water stretched from a small rock rise into the meadow, bordered on the flat side by swamp willow and tall grass yellowed by the summer sun.

There we rested, remote from civilization, rigged our short lines on long willow poles, baited up and dropped our hooks into the pond. When the trout—small, speckled brook trout seldom running beyond eight inches—were biting, you could barely dip your line in without hooking one. For the kids it was marvellous sport.

We'd swim there, after fishing, eat our lunches, packing up the wrapping paper in our bags, and start for home. Each time, I was convinced I could find a shortcut. Each time we got lost. The fumbling way back was not exactly joy unalloyed. Little people grew exhausted and wailed, older people grew irritated and inclined to recriminations. Still we always made it out of the woods to the CNR tracks, along them to Behnsen's trail and wearily across the lake to our beach.

Our arrival lifted the anxiety of those left behind, but their relief quickly changed to sharp scolding. Why did we always come in so late? Why couldn't we get there for supper? Whose idea was it to find a shortcut this time? Did we know Chris Behnsen had been on the point of going out to search for us?

I remember these things when the young son-in-law suggests the hike these days. It is through wonderful country, the kind young Canadians in this part of the world should enjoy and to which they should be introduced in childhood.

★ ★ ★

When I think of the attractions, I also realize that country like this isn't going to stay unspoiled indefinitely. Civilization, pressing outward, is going to change it. There is a certain obligation on us who are older to reveal the beauties of the woods to those who are younger while the beauty remains.

We'll have to do something about it this year. But I wish my knees wouldn't give quite so completely when the idea seizes me.

Big Bonuses Possible From Ammonia Fuel

By JOHN DAVY

An American scientist, Dr. Leon Green, currently working for the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, has drawn up a scheme for switching over to ammonia as our principal fuel. The result, he claims, would be a drastic reduction in pollution, some useful chemical by-products, and possibly an increase in food production.

Subtler Dangers

Pollution caused by burning fossil fuels — coal, oil and gas — is well known. Apart from the toxic fumes and the dirt, these fuels may be polluting the atmosphere in a subtler way — by increasing the proportion of carbon dioxide. This increases the amount of heat from the sun trapped in the earth's atmosphere, and could gradually lead to major climatic changes.

Dr. Green is also anxious about "thermal pollution." Although nuclear power stations are fumeless, they release a lot of wast heat (as do conventional power stations). This is usually carried away into rivers or the sea. But the heating up of these natural bodies of water reduces their capacity to absorb oxygen; this can lead to fouling, the death of fish and other living organisms, and loss of capacity to digest and break down other wastes.

Dr. Green suggests that both carbon dioxide pollution of the air, and thermal pollution of water, will become increasingly serious. Despite all kinds of official studies, the conclusions reached have often been fatalistic. It is argued that nothing can be done about carbon dioxide pollution, or pollution with sulphur from burning oil, since the costs of processing exhaust gases from motor cars, or vapors from factory chimneys, would be prohibitive.

Need Clean Fuel

According to Dr. Green there have been studies of chimney stacks 1,000 feet high, costing $900,000, to carry away sulphur fumes from ground level. But even these merely distribute the pollution more thinly, they do not eliminate it.

The answer, Dr. Green claims, would be to change to a completely "clean" fuel, namely ammonia. This can be synthesized in very pure form be treating natural gas, oil or coal with steam. The main need is for a supply of heat to drive the reaction. If nuclear reactors were built to supply this heat, rather than to drive electric generators, they could be operated with very little "thermal pollution." Such waste heat as arose could be released into the air rather than into cooling water.

The process would produce large amounts of carbon dioxide as a by-product. But since this would be produced in large central plants (rather than in the combustion cylinders of motor cars) it could be collected and retained. It might then be used to make things like aspirin and soda. But the most productive use, Dr. Green suggests, would be in large scale horticulture, for accelerating the growth of plants.

Tested Successfully

This technique has been successfully tested in greenhouses: plants absorb carbon dioxide from the air and combine it with water to form sugar and starch by photosynthesis. A richer supply of carbon dioxide can speed this process. It might be possible, Dr. Green suggests, to lay out huge vegetable gardens surrounded by high walls as windbreaks but open to the sky. Carbon dioxide is heavier than air, and could be trickled into the gardens, and should lie there, forming a gaseous 'pool,' unless blown away by the wind.

The ammonia itself can be burned in slightly modified motor car engines (as was done extensively in Belgium during the last war). Dr. Green conceded that there would be problems in distributing ammonia on the same scale as gasoline — its fumes are acrid, and the result of a collision in a tunnel, for example, could be unpleasant.

On the other hand, the fire hazards would be much less. Furthermore, ammonia could probably be burned away very efficiently in turbine engines — which could encourage the development of the gas turbine car.

One other bonus of going over to an ammonia economy would be an additional source of water, which would be much appreciated in arid areas. Although water is needed to synthesize ammonia from natural gas or oil, when the ammonia is burned, twice as much water is released as was originally used. This suggests an integrated operation using fermentation of town wastes and sewage to augment natural gas supplies ("marsh gas" is, in effect, methane, or natural gas).

Very Pure Water

The polluted water could be used for ammonia synthesis, while burning the ammonia would produce very pure water. It would, in fact, be so pure that people would not like its taste. Perhaps, Dr. Green suggests, some of the surplus carbon dioxide could be pumped in to produce large amounts of soda water.

THE GALLUP POLL

Increasing Number Favor Union Political Activity

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Opinion has been changing over the past few years towards favoring the idea of political activities for unions. In 1959 a large majority of Canadians (70%) did not approve of political activity on the part of unions. Today 58% of the people feel this way. Conversely, the ratio of those who approve union participation in politics has changed. Eight years ago 13% expressed approval of such activities; today 20% are favorable.

The greatest change in thinking on this subject comes from those who have no affiliation with unions. In 1959, 72% of non-union households said unions should not engage in political activities; today that proportion is down to 58%.

The question: "Do you think unions should or should not engage in political activities?"

HONG KONG-CANTON RAIL SERVICE RESUMED

New Speculation of Disorders in China Power Struggle

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Rail traffic between Canton and Hong Kong resumed today after an unexplained 24-hour stoppage which set off speculation of possible serious disorders in China.

Observers here thought the road disruption could mean there had been fighting along the railway route in Kwangtung province.

Another possibility is that rolling stock is being used to move troops down to Wuhan, on the Yangtse River, where Maoists and supporters of disgraced Head of State Liu Shao Chi are reported locked in a grim power struggle.

Last week Deputy Premier Hsieh Fu Chih and Wang Li, a member of the central cultural revolution committee, were reported to have been manhandled and arrested by anti-Maoist groups.

On their return to Peking Saturday they were hailed as heroes at huge public demonstrations. Defence Minister Lin Piao—Mao Tse-tung's heir apparent—and Premier Chou En - lai were among Chinese leaders who attended another mass rally in Peking Tuesday for the two officials.

Right - wing Chinese-language newspapers in Hong Kong quote people who arrived from Canton by road Tuesday as saying there had been fighting between Red Guards and railway workers in Canton.

The British - owned English language evening newspaper China Mail splashes the headline "China Near Civil War" on its front page and speculates that the cause of the rail disruption was trouble in Wuhan, and that rolling stock was being used to move in pro-Mao troops.

Latest reports from Peking also indicated that the Wuhan power struggle is continuing.

The official People's Daily is quoted by radio Peking as saying that "bad chiefs" of the Chinese Liberation Army in Wuhan are making "a last - ditch struggle."

AND BY NFB TOO

It's Started Again —Victoria Ignored

By ELIZABETH FORBES

It's happened again! Victoria has been ignored. And by a national group that should know better.

Forbes

The culprit: National Film Board.

In a presentation titled "Expo 67 — A Preview" (otherwise delightful in all its aspects) it was announced that Canadians "from Vancouver to Newfoundland" could take pride in this centennial spectatcular. There were color shots of Vancouver's skyline and the waterfront near St. John's.

★ ★ ★

— Why . . . why . . . why does this sort of thing happen? Surely those responsible for assembling this film must know there is a Victoria and that it is the capital of British Columbia.

I was not the only one to murmur when the "Vancouver to Newfoundland" bit rang out. In the gathering dusk you could hear angry remarks that must have singed the ears of the young projectionist.

I would not have been surprised if the ghost of George I. Warren had come roaring down on us to register a protest.

Known far and wide as "Mr. Victoria" when he was head of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, George Warren was adept at protesting the ignorance of leading newpapers, top-notch periodicals and other media as far as Victoria was concerned.

★ ★ ★

He used the telephone. He sent wires. He wrote blistering letters. And he got apologies.

I remember a day when the world famous Illustrated London News carried a full page picture of Vancouver and called it the capital of British Columbia. Mr. Warren used up many of his favorite epithets in the letter he rushed off special delivery to the editor.

A month later the magazine made amends by publishing a large picture of Victoria as seen from the Legislative Buildings and captioning it "The Real Capital of British Columbia."

About the same time there was a rash of similar errors in other publications in Canada and overseas. George kept a file of these mistakes. They covered a wide field.

★ ★ ★

Even Webster's near irrefutable dictionary was a culprit when it announced in a current edition that Vancouver was the capital of B.C.

Travel brochures from as far away as London, England, listed Vancouver this way. One summer on official Ontario government folder committed the same crime.

A few years ago when the Canadian Scottish Regiment band went to Seattle for opening of that city's Seafair, a television commentator said the regiment was Vancouver-based. George Warren was only one of thousands of Victorians who steamed at that one.

In elaborate brochures airlines have turned a cold shoulder on Victoria. Booklets have been put out by railways calling Vancouver the Capital.

And away back in those days when Flo Chadwick was attempting to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca, a Seattle daily newspaper said the swim was "from Vancouver to Port Angeles."

Now we discover that our own National Film Board, while not making the same mistake, goes one better and ignores Victoria altogether. It would appear that as far as the Expo 67 preview film is concerned, this is the city that wasn't there.

If George Warren were alive today I'm certain he would have sent a sizzling letter out after Monday evening's "summer cinema" in Beacon Hill Park.

Victoria, he would have written, became the capital city of British Columbia many years ago when the present site of Vancouver was a virgin timber stand on the shores of Burrard Inlet.

Black Clydesdale Filly Makes Matching Four-Horse Team

BY TED GASKELL

Jady (Jabez) Wright is getting close to achieving his ambition to have a four-hitch of matched black Clydesdales.

He had three blacks at his farm on Lamont Road, then at 5 a.m. Monday Lady Choice Jean, his bay mare, without help or fuss threw a leggy velvety grey filly that will grow up to be black like her father, Oakalla Tree Don.

Some years ago when movies were being made at Rithet's Farm, Mr. Wright salvaged an old wagon, rebuilt it and now uses it to show off his draft horses at fairs and exhibitions.

He'd like to see four or six-horse teams at Vancouver Island fairs as a regular feature.

Other people on Vancouver Island are getting interested in Clydesdales for show purposes and the PNE has regular six-horse team contests.

At his Saanichton farm where he runs 80 head of fine Jersey cattle, Mr. Wright has five grown Clydesdales. Two of his blacks are 14 and 24 years old. The stud horse, which he bought from Oakalla, is seven years old and in addition to the new filly's mother, there is a five-year-old mare which is literally a workhorse.

Her name is Pride and she worked last year with another horse at a logging show, one of the few which still uses horses. The pair helped to bring out 500,000 board feet of lumber.

The other Wright Clydesdales don't just eat and sleep. Occasionally they are hitched up and used for farm work.

"They are just as efficient as a tractor but slower. And it takes time to hitch and unhitch them, but we still use them now and again," said Mr. Wright.

Three More Weeks On Estate Inquiry

The inquiry into the value of the 140-acre McRae estate may last three more weeks.

Some say it could be the most expensive inquiry ever held at Victoria Law Courts.

Purpose is to decide how much the McRae family should be paid for the property by Saanich municipality. The expropriation proceedings have been completed under the Municipal Act.

Saanich is reported to have offered $750,000 for the land, while the McRaes have asked for $3,500,000.

The hearing resumed Tuesday after a full week of investigation by the arbitration board comprising Richard Anderson, Vancouver, chairman; Ian Horne, QC, and Douglas Peaker, Victoria.

THREE WEEKS MORE

Robert Price, who is appearing for the owners of the estate said three more weeks may be needed before all the witnesses have been heard.

So far Mr. Price has called only two witnesses for the estate—M. G. Zorkin, realtor, and Philip Jackson, real estate appraiser.

Flag Thief Uncaught

The flags of the 10 provinces, Yukon and North West Territories and the Canadian flag are worth $150, said manager Joe Ianarelli.

Prince Rainier, Son Expected Next Week

Prince Rainier and his nine-year-old son Prince Albert are epected to visit Victoria briefly next week.

The announcement was made in Montreal Tuesday by the Monaco press attache. But Government House officials and the B.C. Centennial Committee were still in the dark about the arrangements this morning.

The Montreal announcement said the ruler and his son will tour the west while Princess Grace recuperates at her mother's home in Philadelphia from a recent miscarriage.

The prince's party will be in Vancouver Aug. 2 to 4 following a visit in the Banff area. While in Vancouver the royal pair are expected to make a brief trip to Victoria.

Later they will go to San Francisco and it is expected that Princess Grace and her daughters Princess Caroline, 10 and Princess Stephanie 2, will join them in California.

Princess Grace, formerly the movie star Grace Kelly, had been expecting a fourth child in January. She suffered the miscarriage after an Expo tour and was taken to Montreal's Victoria Hospital July 19. She was released last Saturday.

Historic Sites Toured Saturday

A bus tour of historic sites in Victoria will be held again Saturday by the University of Victoria.

The trip includes visits to Craigflower Manor, Point Ellice House and Craigdarroch Castle.

The tour will be conducted by newspaperman James K. Nesbitt and will start from the Art Gallery at 2 p.m. A tea will be held at the gallery at the conclusion of the afternoon.

Reservations may be made at the Art Gallery or with Mrs. Cora Brown at the university.

Lecture on Zen Set Thursday In Uvic Series

The third lecture in the "Sight is a kind of love" series will be held at the University of Victoria Thursday night.

The lecture series is organized and sponsored by the students at Uvic and is held at the Student Union Building on the campus.

This week, Dr. Beatrice Yamasaki, a professor of philosophy at the University of Hawaii, will speak on "Zen."

Dr. Yamasaki was a member of the philosophy department at Uvic two years ago.

The last lecture, Aug. 3, will be given by Dr. Rudolph Helling, a sociology professor at the University of Windsor. He will speak on civil liberties in Canada.

Lectures start at 8 p.m. in the upper lounge of the SUB.

British Columbia: Canada's Incredible Province

"No artist, no travel literature can capture the wild beauty of this unlikely province", says famous Canadian author Bruce Hutchison in a fascinating feature article in the August issue of Reader's Digest. Last year, over five million tourists spent $210 million for the sheer fun of romping happily through British Columbia's vast, chaotic natural wealth and wild beauty. What attracted them? Was it the snowcapped mountains, valleys, rivers, lakes, deserts, impenetrable forests or shimmering seashores? Let Bruce Hutchison take you on this "guided tour" of the province that is larger than California, Oregon and Washington combined. Handsomely illustrated in full color, this Digest salute to British Columbia reveals a great deal about all of the areas of this incredible province. Get August Reader's Digest today.

Ammonia Fumes Cleared Away As Esquimalt Arena Reopens

Esquimalt Sports Centre is back in business following a leakage of ammonia gas fumes Tuesday.

The fumes have been cleared away and the arena was open this afternoon for ice skating and will be open for roller skating this evening, said manager Joe Ianarelli.

Tuesday an automatic solenoid switch in the ice-making machinery stuck and was being changed over to manual operation when the gas leak started.

DIVER CALLED IN

A navy diver with wet suit was called in to turn off the valve as the fumes poured out.

"The gas isn't poisonous," said Mr. Ianarelli. "It can be described as harmful. It causes tears and skin irritation, particularly under the armpits. We could have done the job ourselves if wet suits had been available. If the gas was poisonous, I'd have been dead long ago."

He said the summer skating school has been held in the curling rink and the switchover was being made to make ice in the hockey rink for the hockey school, due to start at the end of this month.

Hospital Workers Hold Staff Picnic

Entertainment includes a puppet show and the Thunderbird Girls Drum Corps display. Races will be held during the afternoon with prizes presented at 4 p.m.

More than 400 children and 200 adults are expected to attend the event which starts at 10 a.m.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Kelp Industry Grows Up in B.C.

By AB KENT
Business Editor

The seaweed industry—for years just a sprout compared with its development elsewhere—is showing signs of growing up in British Columbia.

Of the six firms licensed by the B.C. department of recreation and conservation commercial fisheries branch, four have been granted 21-year leases in growth-producing offshore beds, mostly of kelp.

The long leases were made possible for the first time this year by the B.C. legislature, prior to which leases had been granted on an annual basis.

Kent

Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said the long leases had been requested by those showing interest in the industry's possibilities.

"They have to justify hundreds of thousands of dollars in capital development costs," Mr. Kiernan pointed out.

But in order to forestall speculators, who might tie up leases for long periods without development, the licences include performance clauses that require harvesting of 10,000 tons of seaweed the first two years, and at least a total of 30,000 tons by the third year.

The cabinet has authority to cancel a licence whose holder fails to meet requirements.

Seaweed on this coast means kelp, the long-stemmed, leafy branch variety, and the comomn bull kelp, with the whip-like stalk and bulbous end trailing its fronds in the water.

Both may be reduced to sodium alginate, a product used in the manufacture of many commercial products from cosmetics to housepaint and foods. The North American market seems to be well supplied, but new developers may find buyers in the Orient.

Marine growth from the east coast would have more chance in the market place since it can be used for the extraction of agar, a gelatinous substance used in the making of soups, as a culture medium and in manufacturing.

There is a world shortage of this product, but whether it could be cultivated on the Pacific shelf is not known as research in the growing of sea crops here is practically non-existent.

To assist industry which could exploit seaweed, the federal fisheries department has asked B.C. Research Council to review technical work and industrial developments in the area pertaining to the west coast.

Meanwhile, four companies, including one based in Sidney, have 21-year leases for harvesting kelp.

They are: Pacific Kelp Co., Ltd., Vancouver, which has 17 license areas covering the coast of Vancouver Island and the adjacent mainland, except for parts of six areas held by Sidney Seaweed Products, also for 21 years.

Two more Vancouver companies have annual licences to harvest seaweed in Hecate Strait and on the north mainland coast.

The licence areas which they hold use the same boundaries as the fisheries department as an administrative convenience. They do not contain equal areas.

Mr. Kiernan said that although the British North America Act is specific about fisheries jurisdiction — assigning them to the federal government — it is silent on marine growth. Provincial supervision of shellfish and marine growth is with the tacit understanding of the federal authority.

"Seaweed harvesting is practised in other parts of the world and it looks like it has a chance of establishing as a substantial industry here. It needs no replanting if it is properly done," Mr. Kiernan said.

Research by the companies is being carried out to determine the best means of harvesting the crop, whose byproduct is a soil conditioner similar to peat moss.

Better Service Aim Of Home Directors

Fewer service stations—but aimed to provide better service—is a major object of Home Oil Distributors Ltd., whose directors met here for the first time Tuesday.

President R. N. Bubbs said service station emphasis of the future will be directed toward the total needs of the motorist.

Home Oil Distributors—not, as often believed, a subsidiary of Home Oil Ltd.—is looking with great interest at the concept being pioneered in Canada by Imperial Oil.

That firm has set up a number of diagnostic service centres, like the new facility at Shelbourne and Hillside, where complete auto analysis and repair services are maintained.

New stations planned by Home will be better looking as well, Mr. Bubbs said. One of three due to open soon in B.C. is in Victoria, for which a contract is let. The others are being built at Gold River and Nanaimo.

Home's headquarters is Vancouver, where it was established in 1928. The firm has had no connection with Home Oil for more than 30 years, operating as a private company.

It has 350 service stations, marine stations, agents and heating oil distributors throughout B.C.

CZ Sales Up, Earnings Dip

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Crown Zelelrbach has reported that sales for the first half of 1967 touched new highs, but earnings fell below a year ago.

The six-month sales volume of nearly $388,000,000 was up six per cent. Earnings of $23,500,000 were down five per cent.

This represented $1.51 a share compared with $1.58 for the corresponding period of 1966.

The company said a second quarter drop in demand was noted mainly in newsprint, container, board and unbleached kraft papers.

In Takeover Of Tide Bay Ltd.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dillingham Corp. Canada Ltd., of Vancouver, has announced it has acquired Tide Bay Construction Ltd., also of Vancouver, as its second operational subsidiary.

The announcement was made jointly by H. L. Fritz, president and general manager of Tide Bay, and H. E. Wolfe, vice-president of Dillingham Corp. in charge of Canadian operations. The price was not disclosed.

Dillingham is an international corporation based in Hawaii. It operates through 11 major subsidiaries engaged in general construction, maritime services, real estate, oceanographic engineering and merchandising throughout the Pacific rim area.

VANCOUVER EXCHANGE SUSPENDS COMPANY

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Stock Exchange board of governors Tuesday announced suspension of the members of Waite Reid & Co., Ltd., pending an investigation into the company's affairs.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

New Rules Hurt Small Companies

TORONTO (CP)—Some Toronto mining promoters and securities dealers say new regulations governing mining stocks on the Toronto Stock Exchange are pushing junior mining companies out of business.

"Because of the TSE's unrealistic financing policies, small companies can't afford to retain properties any more," says Larry Labow, a Toronto mining promoter.

Mr. Labow recently had one of his companies delisted by the exchange for not meeting minimum financial requirements.

He says the problem facing these companies is their inability to raise adequate risk funds through the TSE to carry out needed exploration work.

There have been suggestions that a separate mining exchange be established to handle the needs of the industry.

LIMITING PRICES

On June 1, the TSE introduced legislation limiting the price range at which underwirters could sell speculative shares from minjing company treasuries to the public through the exchange to raise necesssary risk capital.

Since then only one financial deal has been made by a listed speculative company through the exchange. Mine financing through the TSE to date totals about $4,500,000 compared with $17,600,000 for the same period last year.

Previously promoters and underwriters had been allowed to increase prices as far as they were able. Some made profits of up to 300 per cent.

Mr. Labow says underwriters are no longer willing to finance the sale of treasury shares because the price spreads now allowed are not attractive enough.

Speculative activity on the Toronto exchange has suffered from the tough regulations. For the first six months of this year speculative volume tumbled to 288,313,000 shares compared with 560,448,000 for the same period last year.

Strike Vote Thursday

VANCOUVER (CP)—Employees of W. H. Malkin Ltd., a wholesale grocery company, will vote Thursday on whether to strike to back up wage increase demands.

The strike vote was called Tuesday following the failure of negotiations between the company and the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union.

The dispute affects 160 warehousmen, office workers and truck drivers in Vancouver, Victoria, Nanaimo, Prince Rupert and Prince George. Base rates are $2.64 hourly for warehousemen, $2.43½ for office staff and $2.94 for truck drivers.

The union has asked for wage parity with employees of Macdonald Consolidated Ltd., another wholesaler—an extra 60 cents an hour in a two-year agreement, and other benefits.

VANCOUVER PRESIDENT STILL HOPEFUL

Westbank Windup Action Started

TORONTO (CP) — Marc Bienvenu, chairman of York Lambton Corp. Ltd. which holds a controlling interest in the Bank of Western Canada, says steps are being taken to wind up the bank's operations.

Mr. Bienvenu said Tuesday in a letter to shareholders of York Lambton and British International Finance Canada Ltd. a meeting of the bank shareholders will be called to replace the present board of directors and to pass a resolution to wind up the bank.

Mr. Bienvenu controls the bank through the two Toronto companies. York Lambton, the BIF subsidiary, holds 50.1 per cent of the bank's shares.

He said the course of action announced in the letter "can still undergo certain changes and some weeks might elapse before anything is finalized."

Winding up of the bank and retrieval of the $6,500,000 invested would improve York Lambton's liquid position and profitability, he said.

"This procedure," he said, "is not to be construed as being directed against any director, or directors, of the bank who have worked assiduously to solve the many problems they have encountered.

AWARE OF LETTER

James Coyne, former president of the bank, said in a telephone interview from Kenora, Ont., that he was aware of Mr. Bienvenu's letter but would not comment on it.

"It is better to wind it up than to fail to meet the purposes for which it was chartered," he added.

"It is a sad thing if the terms of the charter cannot be fully filled."

Mr. Coyne said he and W. T. Brown of Vancouver, recently named president of the bank, were informed by Mr. Bienvenu June 15 that the bank would be wound up if a buyer was not found soon.

The Bank of Western Canada obtained a federal charter last December and was to have opened in March. The opening was delayed after Mr. Coyne, as president, tangled first with Sinclair Stevens, then head of BIF, and later with Mr. Bienvenu.

Mr. Bienvenu gained control of BIF in March when his principal company, La Corporation Fonciere de Montreal, bought a $3,000,000, 180-day York Lambton debenture which matures Sept. 16.

Mr. Coyne was removed as president at a Winnipeg board meeting last week.

There had been earlier speculation that Mr. Bienvenu, who tried unsuccessfully to have Mr. Coyne resign, would wind up the bank.

However, York Lambton announced a month ago it would make its stock available to Western Canadian investors at $15 a share, thus enabling the bank to start operating and preserve its western character, a factor in the disputes.

In Vancouver, Mr. Brown, the bank's recently appointed interim president, said the move had been expected for "some weeks."

Mr. Brown declined to confirm that the move means the end of the controversial bank.

U.S. 'Saturation' Raids Hit N. Vietnam's Big Guns

SAIGON (AP) — Waves of high - altitude B-52 Stratofortresses made one of their rare invasions of North Vietnam today for a saturation raid on gun emplacements and dug-in bunkers of the North Vietnamese 341st Division just above the 17th parallel frontier.

The U.S. command said the big bombers came in waves two hours apart and bombed an area almost two miles long and two miles wide.

The target area was just north of the demilitarized zone dividing Vietnam and about 14 miles inland—the area where the 341st Division is posted and from which heavy guns have for weeks fired deadly barrages on U.S. marines dug in about seven miles to the south.

Although ground action was scattered and inconclusive, there were these other developments in the war:

—The U.S. command announced that the 76,000-ton Forrestal, third largest U.S. aircraft carrier, has joined the 7th Fleet operating against North Vietnam from the Tonkin Gulf. The Australian destroyer Hobart also rejoined the fleet

—Two U.S. jets were downed over North Vietnam Tuesday.

—Viet Cong guerrillas wearing South Vietnamese army uniforms, seized a Red Cross ambulance, surprised a militia post and police station six miles northwest of the capital, killed 11 policemen and militiamen and wounded seven others.

President Johnson's special envoys, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor and Washington lawyer Clark Clifford, completed a two-day visit to Saigon. Taylor said he was "very much impressed by evidence of improvement" in the South Vietnamese army.

ARE CUBANS TRAINING QUEBEC SEPARATISTS?

RACIAL INJUSTICES MUST BE REMOVED

Indians' Hostility Near Boiling Point, Ottawa Told

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says a report prepared by a social research team for the federal government indicated racial hostility between Indians and whites in several Western Canadian cities is near the explosion point.

The paper says the research team, headed by Gene Rheaume, a former member of Parliament for the Northwest Territories, urges immediate action to remove injustices, soothe inter-racial anger and help to make a better life for Indians, Metis and Eskimos.

The Globe says the report, Indians and the Law, is still on the government's confidential list and that Ottawa informants say it will be released officially in several weeks' time, when the French translation is finished.

The paper states several dozen copies of the draft report are in the hands of Indian affairs specialists, social workers, social scientists and administrators.

"In many places," the paper quotes the report, "Indians are exploited by unscrupulous merchants, bootleggers or others. . . ."

It says the study shows that feeling is widespread among the Indians and Metis that police push them around, arrest them on the slightest provocation and discriminate against them at every turn.

The Globe's figures from the report show that more than 35 per cent of the men, women and children in jails and training schools throughout the country are of Indian ancestry.

It also states there are two sets of rules: one for Indians and one for whites. When Indians drink heavily at carnivals and rodeos, people call them worthless drunks. When non-Indians get drunk, people call them "real swingers."

The Globe says the research committee brought in 15 recommendations and urged that a national conference be called by an independent agency to plan means of putting the report's recommendations into action.

JUST BEFORE DROWNING

Sister Removed Pool Barricade

"I don't want this ladder on my pool," three-year-old Pamela White told her mother.

A coroner's jury heard Tuesday night that Pamela has slid the step-ladder barricade off the backyard plastic wading pool Saturday evening only a short time before her one-year-old sister, Karen, crawled into the pool and drowned.

The jury ruled that Karen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph White of 1262 Stancil Lane in View Royal, died through no negligence on the part of her parents.

REASONABLE CARE

The Whites had at all times exercised reasonable care, said the verdict.

Mrs. White said the children were playing on the patio while she was washing the dishes.

Pamela came into the house and her mother asked her where Karen was.

THREE INCHES

When Mrs. White then went out to fetch her, she found Karen lying half in the pool. There was only about three inches of water in it at the time.

Efforts by RCMP Constable James Schrumm and doctors at St. Joseph's Hospital failed to revive Karen.

HOT TIME IN TOWN FEARED

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Residents of five small Australian towns around a bay near here were warned today not to strike a match anywhere near the water.

Police issued the order after thousands of gallons of gasoline leaked into the Westernport Bay 40 miles southeast of Melbourne Tuesday night where a tanker was discharging at a refinery.

The gasoline formed a slick two to three inches thick over about seven square miles.

Police said they are treating the incident as an emergency and ambulances are standing by.

Fine for Shoplifting Imposed on Woman

Esther Wylie, 25, 618 Grenville Avenue, was arrested July 24 after stealing a bottle of skin lotion and half a carton of cigarettes from a Safeway store on Esquimalt Road.

MRS. STEWART

SHE'S DONATED 106 'OFFICIAL' PINTS

Grandmother Finds Giving Blood Sure-Fire Remedy for Headaches

Grey-haired Mrs. Leverne Stewart has given all her blood away 17 times.

From the age of 16, the sprightly grandmother started giving blood.

On Saturday she was officially recognized for giving more than 100 pints.

According to Red Cross records, Mrs. Stewart, of 715 Kings Road, has donated the grand total of 106 pints.

But no records were kept during war years when she reckons she gave a pint a month. And the body only holds 12 to 14 pints.

When she went to Government House at the weekend to receive a centennial plaque from Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, the former cook had one idea in mind — to give mor blood.

"I'm going to see my doctor to see if I can start donating again. I feel much better afterwards. It gets rid of my headaches, you know."

That was just a year after she got married for the second time after being a widow 15 years.

"Hubby", Wilfred 57, has never given a pint in his life — "He's too shy," says Mrs. Stewart.

Raised and schooled in Chemainus, Mrs. Stewart spent the war years in a munitions factory at Windsor, Ont.

"It was hard work," she recalls. "I lost two fingers the second day I was there. That's the only time I received blood instead of giving it."

The $15 she received for each pint of Group "O" positive helped eke out a living during those tougher years.

Not that Mrs. Stewart worried about the cash. When payment stopped, she kept right on giving.

She returned to live in Victoria after the war.

REACTOR LEAKING

LONDON (AP)—One of two experimental nuclear reactors at Dounreay on the north coast of Scotland has been closed for a week because radioactivity was escaping, the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority anonunced Tuesday night. The statement said no radioactivity contained in shielded structures around the reactors, escaped after failure of a metal container for nuclear fuel in the core of the reactor.

Canadian Republic Aim of New Party

EDMONTON (CP) — Gerald Gouejon, a Vancouver lawyer, said Tuesday his fledgling Republican Party of Canada will field a full slate of candidates in the next B.C. election. Mr. Gouejon, here on business, said in an interview the party's main aim is creation of a Canadian republic.

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. 'Tiny Tiger' Makes First Games' Start

By BRUCE LEVETT

WINNIPEG (CP)—Elaine Tanner, the tiny tiger from Vancouver, was making her first appearance in the Pan-American Games today, and from the way the swimmers performed Tuesday she'll have to be at her best.

The fifth Games got into full swing today as Canada's divers, swimmers, shooters and fencers went after medals. Only three gold medals were up for grabs Monday and Tuesday, with U.S. shooters winning a pair and Chile taking another in the equestrian competition.

Miss Tanner's first chance of the Games comes in the women's 200 - metre backstroke where she joins another Vancouver girl, 15-year-old Jeanne Warren.

Mary Pat Pumfrey of Victoria and Donna Ross of Montreal are competing in the 200-metre breaststroke while Tom Arusoo of Montreal is entered in the men's 200 - metre butterfly.

Heats in all three events are scheduled in the morning with the finals at night.

Elaine Is Entered in Seven Events

All four Canadians entered in Tuesday's women's 200-metre freestyle and men's 100-metre freestyle easily qualified and five swimmers, including two Canadian girls, bettered Games' records.

Miss Tanner, 16, will be swimming in seven events here. In the British Empire Games at Kingston, Jamaica, last year she also was in seven—winning four gold and three silver medals.

"I knew I had it when I heard those cheers," said Miss Lay after winning her heat in the women's 200 - metre freestyle.

The Vancouver - born speedster won by 18 yards in 2:16.4. Miss Coughlan, a 14-year-old from Burlington, Ont., was second in another heat in 2:17.3.

The old 1963 mark of 2:17.5 took a real beating, with another heat winner, Pamela Kruse of the United States, turning in the best performance with the Games record she at least can call her own for a few hours anyway—2:15.7.

Fine Effort Against World Champ

Miss Coughlan came second to American Pokey Watson in her heat and the two swam one of the most electrifying races of the day. They were half a pool length ahead of the pack at the finish.

Miss Coughlan was somewhat amazed at her fine performance against a world champion.

"I kept waiting for her to run away from me. I feel pretty good, but I've got to do better than my best in the final. I really thought Pokey would run away with it."

The freestyle finals in the 200 and 100 are on tap today. In the men's 100, Canada has two finalists — Bob Kastings of Lethbridge, Alta., and veteran Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls, B.C.

Kasting, the shaven - headed 16-year-old, set a Canadian native record of 55.0 en route to a second - place finish in a heat of the 100.

The winner, Zack Zorn of the U.S., finished about four feet ahead of Kastings, breaking the Games record of 54.7 by 9-10ths of a second.

"It wasn't so much that I was gaining—he was dying," Kastings said of Zorn. Gilchrist did 55.3 in a later heat.

Canada's young girl divers remained third and fourth in the three - metre springboard competition with three more dives left today.

Canada picked up its first medal Tuesday, a third - place bronze in the dressage team event which attracted only three teams.

Chile won the gold medal with 2,158 points, followed by the U.S. with 1,929 and Canada with 1,699.

The undefeated field hockey team tied Argentina 1-1 on a second-half goal by Jeff Stringer of Toronto. With a win and a tie, the Canadians and Argentines are tied for first place with three points each.

The volleyballers had a discouraging time as both the men and women were beaten in straight sets. Mexico defeated Canada in the men's play, evening the Canadian record at 1-1. The Canadian women were crushed by the U.S. in 38 minutes.

STRENUOUS BUSINESS

Gritting teeth and straining muscles as he hoists better than 260 pounds into air is Ontario weightlifter Price Morris, who hopes to collect medal for Canada in Pan-American Games at Winnipeg. Price, a heavyweight, is taking part in his first international competition. (CP Wirephoto.)

Little Woes Grew Into Big Troubles

By HAL MALONE

VANCOUVER — As the fellow who built the pyramids said, it's the little things that count, every (censored) one of them.

Little things turned into mountains of grief for Victoria Shamrocks at Kerrisdale Arena Tuesday night. Measure the Shamrock woes in a 12-7 defeat by Vancouver Carlings.

Count Caris' happiness in two points, enough for first place in the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

Shamrocks can get those points back tonight—if they can solve Vancouver at Memorial Arena starting at 8.

With only five league games left, Shamrocks have a tenuous hold on a playoff berth. They have a lone point cushion over Coquitlam, three points on New Westminster.

SPECTACLES, ANYONE?

With the heat those clubs can apply it's like trying to outrun a hungry wolf when one of your legs is nicely broken.

But unless the law of averages is crazy, Shamrocks aren't likely to encounter two nights running the "little things" again.

Like what?

Like the eyesight of referees Bev Groves and Jack Northup. Vancouver, the second most heavily penalized team in the league, was assessed six minutes. Victoria collected 14. Spectacles, anyone?

Like two plays in the second period. Score is tied 4-4. Bill Munro, checking aggressively, slaps the ball from John Cervi's stick. What's this? The loose ball goes to Sid Warick, completely out of the play. Shoots. Scores.

OFF SALT INTO GOAL

Twenty-eight seconds later—at 16:20—Victoria's Tom Black raps Bill Robinson's stick. Out pops the ball. Vancouver's Bob Salt is jogging past the goal. He doesn't see the ball. But it has eyes. It hits his stick and pops past an amazed Doug Thompson.

In a game that's tighter than capri pants on some of those damsels in Centennial Square, two breaks like that are enough to make you spit on the floor.

Victoria spat back, in fact. Bill Russell, in his first try with Victoria this season, pumped in a fast goal before the period ended.

But here we go again. With J. McNeil taking the draw on the opening faceoff of the third period, the ball goes deep and quick into the Victoria end.

THREE ON ONE

Everybody thought Rocks' Ted Liebich had it. Everybody but Vancouver. They stormed in, three on one Liebich. Ross McDonald finally collected it, whipped a pass to Don Boyd and . . . 7-5 Vancouver.

The Carls are cute. Give them two goals and they'll let you see the ball when it pleases them. They had the key to the vault and they played come and get it.

They ran the margin to 9-5, each thrust calculated and cool. Bill Munroe, with his second goal, cut it to 9-6. But desperation begets misery and Vancouver gave Shamrocks their money's worth. Gord Frederickson, John Servi and Salt rubbed pepper into the Rocks' eyes with three goals in three minutes.

FINE DEBUT

Shamrock coach Dave Unwin gave the Carls and 2,110 partisans something to think about with 40 seconds to go. He pulled goalkeeper Doug Thompson.

Faced with covering seven men, the Carls had a collective fit. They didn't score (Ranjit Dillon nipped in to stop a lone shot) and Victoria had a ball. They had it most of the time but they were too keen and couldn't capitalize.

One fake too many, a shot wide, a loose ball skimming past Shamrock players to an uncovered Carling.

Little things.

Mary, Mary, Now We Know

Mary Struthers didn't rate a ranking when the British Columbia Open tennis championships began at the Racquet Club Monday.

She does now.

Mary took on second-ranked Marlene Muench of Sacramento Wednesday and pulling out all the stops came out ahead 0-6, 7-5, 10-8.

Her victory was the only major upset of the day.

Yeomans teamed with Doug Verdick to move into the men's doubles semi-finals after defeating fellow Californians Charles Pate and John Speigel 3-6, 7-5, 6-1.

In mixed doubles Dr. and Mrs. Crane defeated Victorians Nancy Hill and Ernie Cockayne 9-7, 10-8, while Nancy Platz and Corky Meinhardt took Diane Rudell and Terry Ehlers 7-9, 6-2, 17-15.

Harvey to Play At Kansas City

MONTREAL (CP)—The Gazette says it has learned that Doug Harvey, 42-year-old veteran of the National and American hockey league, is to return to action this season with Kansas City Blues of the Central Professional Hockey League.

'NEXT PLEASE'

Pedal-Pushing Fine, Peddling Drugs Not

WINNIPEG (CP) — No suspicions. No hard feelings. But every cyclist at the Pan-American Games who wins a heat or finishes in the top six of a road race has to take a dope test.

"I don't want the public to think that cyclists are drug peddlers," said Benny Foster, director of the Pan-Am cycling committee and a former British cycling champion.

"But we are honest enough to admit that things have happened. Every sport has this problem and I think cyclists are kittens compared to some other athletes."

At the 1960 Oylmpic Games in Rome, a Danish cyclist collapsed and died when he was overcome by the heat in a road race. It was later reported that he had taken a stimulant.

Any Pan-Am rider caught using drugs will be automatically disqualified and suspended, Foster said.

Future of Aintree Still Bogged Down

LONDON (AP) — The future of Aintree racetrack, home of the Grand National, is bogged down in a political quagmire.

A plan for saving the Lancashire track has been rejected by the Conservatives, who recently captured Lancashire County Council from Labor in local government elections.

Before it was toppled, the Labor administration approved a scheme for purchasing the 270-acre site from the 75-year-old owner, Mirabel Topham, who intended selling the money-losing track for a housing development.

Having saved the land from becoming just another district of nearby, overcrowded Liverpool, the Labor council envisaged a $13,500,000 centre for various indoor and outdoor sports alongside the track.

WILLING TO ASSIST

The election gave the Conservatives the chance to veto what they called a "grandiose" plan. They still are willing to assist in saving Aintree, but not to the extent of burdening Lancashire taxpayers.

With the track's future in doubt, the Grand National Steeplechase also has a doubtful future. A 1968 National is certain, but future races cannot be guaranteed.

Aintree's main problem has been simply that it does not make money. Apart from the National, the track might as well not exist for the rest of the year as far as the average racegoer is concerned.

The few other meets held are often poorly attended.

Bronco, Eskimo Bolster Flavor

Tommy Thompson, three years a defensive back with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference, joined in the Topaz Park workout.

He rejoined a former Esk mate, Norm Thomas.

Steelers have 30 players working under head coach Don McKeta, plan to bring in a dozen more.

Two they signed Wednesday are Tom Macey, 250-pounder from the Denver Broncos 'training camp, and Warren Woodward, quarterback.

Woodward last year guided Portland Thunderbirds in the Pacific Football League. They are expected to arrive in time for Steelers' drill at 6:30 tonight.

Ladder Chess Leaders

D. Scoones leads the white division and M. McIntosh tops the red division in ladder competition at Victoria City Chess Club.

Matches last week were won by Scoones, J. Wouterlood, C. Birch, A. Higgs and E. Seedhouse.

JOCKEY HITS 2,000 MARK

SEATTLE (AP) — On Aug. 16, 1954, Canadian jockey Paul Frey, then 16 years old, rode his first horse to victory in a race at Edmonton.

Tuesday he became the 33rd jockey in the history of American racing to ride 2,000 winners.

Frey, a native of Saskatchewan, pounded home Shawn's Hope in the first race at Longacres race track to attain the goal. He also went on to win three more races for the day.

BASKETBALL AT GAMES

Canucks Divide Games With Cuba

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian women's basketball team avenged a defeat by the men's team at the hands of Cuba earlier in the day by thrashing the Cuban girls 70-48 Tuesday in their first appearance of the fifth Pan-American Games. It was the Cubans' second loss.

Cuba downed Canada 77-66 in the men's game, in which the Canadians were only four points down until the last half minute of play.

Diane Doyle, a 26-year-old mother from Burnaby, B.C., who wasn't even in the starting lineup, led the Canadian women to victory with a 20-point performance including a string of eight consecutive points that broke the game wide open early in the second half. The streak included a 25-foot set shot.

Barbara Robertson of Ocean Falls, B.C., was the only other Canadian to reach double figures with 10 points.

In the men's game, the Cubans led only 32-28 at half time and the Canadians hung on, despite the loss of their two big men, Bob Inglis of Calgary and Bob Croft of Hamilton, who fouled out midway through the second half.

But with 30 seconds remaining and the score 70-66, the Canadians missed four consecutive shots from the field and Cuban centre Pedro Chappe connected for five points to decide the issue.

Lions Made It Close In Tiff With Leaders

The first met the last in Senior Men's Softball at Central Park Wednesday and the result was predictable if close.

Red Lion finished the season as they started it—losing.

But after Luckies galloped to a 6-1 lead, Red Lion bunched four of their eight hits for four runs in the fourth inning.

Three errors helped chase starter Jack Lundquist. But Glenn Langsett came on for Luckies and shut out the losers the rest of the way.

Brice Slaps Down Proud Transports

Transport Workers rule the Senior Baseball League roost but that's no reason why they can't be cuffed.

George Brice did it to them Wednesday at Royal Athletic Park.

The strong righthander held the proud 'Ports to eight spaced hits and drove in the winning run as third place Rawlings took a 6-4 victory.

Brice's sixth-inning single was the key blow. The winners added an insurance run in the seventh inning.

BOXLA BABES RAISE $4,000 . . . FOR EASTERN TOUR

Plucky Pee-Wees Plan to Spread Gospel

By AL EATON

VANCOUVER (CP) — After 100 years as Canada's so-called national game, the first cross-country tour in history by a minor league lacrosse team will take place next month.

New Westminster Pee-Wee Salmonbellies will spend $4,000 of their own money in an attempt to show other parts of the nation how the game should be played.

Coach Don Benson's pee-wees have lost only two games in four years. However, they lost both games to Saanich in a play-off for the B.C. title and thus are not the best in the west.

The youngsters, realizing a lot of money was needed for the trip, started raising funds last December. Some have newspaper routes, some even have two routes. Others did odd jobs for their parents and neighbors. To help their youngsters, parents have arranged dances, conducted raffles and donated money out of their own pockets.

This attitude reflects the general approach to lacrosse in many B.C. area, notably the neighboring Vancouver areas of New Westminster, Burnaby and Coquitlam and on Vancouver Island.

Through the four-team senior inter - City Lacrosse League, the B.C. Lacrosse Association helps to pay for the helmets and sticks of minor-league players. These include Tykes (under 8), Novices (under 10), Pee Wees (under 12), Bantams (under 14) and midgets (under 16).

Since use of helmets was made compulsory among the minor ranks three years ago, there has been a lacrosse boom going on in B.C. Registration of minor players, those 16 and under, has doubled.

Dave Buckham, provincial secretary, reports there now are 3,500 registered minor players in the province, plus the junior and senior players.

SPREADING

The boom is spreading. The northern coastal B.C. community of Kitimat started a minor program about three years ago. The interior city of Kamloops has had a minor league for two years and the neighboring province of Alberta has begun a lacrosse program.

This boom is echoing into the United States. A mini league, similar to the one introduced by pro soccer this year, is being set up on the U.S. west coast.

Exhibition games on a semi-professional level are scheduled for Seattle, Portland, and it is the plan of promoter Jim Allison to transplant the existing four-team Inter-City League, keeping one team in Vancouver, and moving the remaining three to Seattle, San Francisco and Portland.

The last time lacrosse was promoted seriously at an exhibition level in the U.S. was in 1961 in Portland. Crowds averaged more than 10,000 persons paid during a three-game tournament, but the idea of a permanent league wasn't pursued at that time.

A full field of cars from the Victoria and surrounding area will be present at Sunday's meet. Gates open at 9 a.m., with match racing and eliminations to begin at 1:30 p.m.

Saturday, the track will be open for time trials from 12 noon to 6 p.m.

Cards May Also Lead League in Nonchalance

By Associated Press

St. Louis Cardinals, once again perched atop the National League, are also bidding fair to lead the league in nonchalance.

The Cards opened a critical three-game series with Chicago Cubs Tuesday night with both teams tied for the league leead. A brilliant relay play from centrefield to the plate transformed Ted Savage from the potential Chicago tying run to the final out in a 4-3 St. Louis victory.

And how did the Cardinals react? Calmly, to say the least.

"Maxie (shortstop Dal Maxvill) told me to throw so I threw," said Julian Javier, who relayed the ball in from second, with an authentic shrug. "I wasn't surprised."

"I didn't think it was such a great play," yawned catcher Tim McCarver, who made the tag at the plate after Ernie Banks had already scored on the play. "I mean the ball was right there so what's the big deal?"

In other less nerve-wracking National League action Tuesday night, Philadelphia Phillies pounded Houston Astros 12-7, San Francisco Giants edged New York Mets 5-4, Atlanta Braves nudged Cincinnati Reds 1-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers beat Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1.

Rich Allen carried Philadelphia's big stick, pounding out four hits — including his 13th homer—driving in four runs, scoring three and stealing two bases. Jim Bunning got his 10th victory.

POLISHED IT GOOD

Ken Berry took the apple twice. The third time he polished it — real good.

"I took the apple the other two times," said Berry in explaining his failure to deliver in two game-winning situations in the second game of the Chicago White Sox' doubleheader with Cleveland Tuesday night.

"So I had to do something about," Berry continued.

He did — smashing a two-run homer in the bottom of the 16th inning to give the White Sox a 6-5 victory. A two-run homer by J. C. Martin in the ninth inning gave the Sox a 3-1 victory in the opener.

Martin also hit a two-run homer in the nightcap as did pinch-hitter Smoky Burgess.

The twin victories moved the American League leading Sox two full games ahead of runner-up Boston Red Sox, losers 6-4 to third-place California Angels.

In other AL action, Kansas City Athletics swept Washington Senators 5-1 and 6-5 and the Baltimore-New York game was rained out after nine innings with the score tied 1-1. The Detroit-Minnesota game was washed out.

BRITAIN'S CRICKETERS CONTINUE TOUR BREEZE

OTTAWA (CP)—The touring Marylebone Cricket Club of Britain continued to breeze through Canadian opposition Tuesday with an almost effortless 203-74 victory over Saskatchewan.

The British club, on a seven-week tour of North America, declared at 203 runs with the loss of only four wickets.

David Mordaunt, who toured Canada in 1959 with the same club, led Marylebone batsmen with 72 runs. Robert Gale had 64 runs and captain Dennis Silk added 44.

In its previous three games here, Marylebone defeated Manitoba and British Columbia and tied with Ontario.

Late Quebec Rally Beats B.C. Squad

OTTAWA (CP)—Quebec rallied in the dying moments to defeat British Columbia and take the lead in the Canadian senior cricket championship Tuesday.

Quebec scored a four-wicket victory after B.C. opened with 112 runs, all out. Quebec made its 113th run with only four minutes playing time remaining.

The win gave Quebec nine points with three points for the victory. Quebec has won three games and lost one—to second-place Ontario which played to a draw with Manitoba Tuesday.

Ontario has 7½ points with two victories and one draw, having played one game less than Quebec.

Ralph Williams scored 34 runs to lead Quebec to its victory while Leroy Shillingford added 21. Bowler Jerome Mellow was four for 28.

Darrell Winterlik with 30 runs and Karan Copalshingh with 25, led the B.C. batters.

B.C. has three points with one victory and one loss.

Manitoba, which has yet to win a game, held Ontario to a draw by batting for almost four hours to reach 121 runs all out. This left Ontario with only 97 minutes to pass that score.

Bottlers Bop Century Crew

Bob Harris gave up only three hits Wednesday as lowly Bottle Exchange erupted for 14 and a 11-3 victory over second-place Century Inn in Stuffy McGinnis Softball League play at Heywood Avenue Park.

The losers committed six errors and used three pitchers.

Stumbling Riders Get Another Chance Tonight

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders, selected by the experts as the team to beat in the East this season, arrived in Vancouver Tuesday with a football record that failed to support the forecast.

They were beaten 13-11 by Calgary Stampeders Monday night for their second straight loss to the Stamps, and now have only one chance to salvage something before the Canadian Football League officially opens.

That chance comes tonight at Empire Stadium here where a crowd expected to exceed 25,000 will see Frank Clair's squad test the "new look" British Columbia Lions.

Lions' head coach Dave Skrien has hired two new assistant coaches, a new quarterback, and has instituted a new offensive formation.

Halfbacks Bill Munsey, Dave Muton and Leroy Sledge all go around 225 pounds. Fullback Larry Ellmes is 215, halfback Jim Young 210, and quarterback Bernie Fulmey 260.

STRONG DEFENCE

Sledge, a 26-year-old small college all-American running back, just joined the Leos a week ago. He is Skrien's answer to Ottawa's small college "dropout" Margene Adkins, a 19-year-old receiver rated by Ottawa manager Red O'Quinn as the "best receiver to come along since Hal Patterson."

Because Adkins is fighting for a job in an offence that includes such stars as Russ Jackson, Ron Stewart, Jim Dillard, Rick Black, Bo Scott, Ted Watkins and Jay Roberts, the Lions are concerned.

Genius of Walt Disney Still Animates Studios

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Movie Reviewer

HOLLYWOOD—For those of us who grew up on Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck it is a magical experience to explore the make-believe kingdom created by the late Walt Disney.

From the expansive studios at Burbank where so many epics were created, I wandered out to Disneyland Park and everywhere found the imprint of a genius whose imagination spanned heaven and earth.

To Disney a teapot was not a teapot but a face which could be animated into a live personality. The planets were not cold inaccessible worlds but capable of being reduced to a theatre screen.

And a squawking duck could be made to embody some of the worst characteristics of the human race.

What of Disneyland and the Disney film studios now that the great animating force—the perfectionist with the quirky smile—is no longer behind them?

DISNEY WORLD ALIVE

For the half year ending April 1, 1967, the net income from Walt Disney Productions and its subsidiaries was $4,898,000 compared with $4,502,000 of April 1, 1966.

"He left a highly-trained staff behind him and we are still busy with the many projects he envisioned," said Walt's elder brother, who helped found the company and is now its top executive.

Walt died last Dec. 15.

Since then, three full-length movies bearing the familiar

SNOW WHITE

label "Walt Disney Presents" have been completed, and future films will carry the imprint "A Walt Disney Production."

Characteristically, Walt declared that if Disneyland ever stopped changing it would be "dead." Shortly before his passing, he decreed that the section known as Tomorrowland should be entirely remodelled.

Some of the stockholders grumbled, but Tomorrowland was up-dated at a cost of $22,000,000 and opened to the public on June 25. It is a masterpiece.

Eagerly, I pressed through the perspiring crowds for an imaginary journey in a space ship. Alas, it was temporarily closed because the loyal Disney executives had decided the heavenly journey must be improved.

Not surprisingly, Walt Disney was a hard man to work for.

I talked with an animator (cartoonist) who told me he had been with the firm 32 years.

"You must like it," I said.

"Oh, I don't know about that. I resigned four times and once stayed away for a month. Walt was a good man but almost unbearable at times."

So it is when perfectionism is wedded to genius.

"Write what you like about Walt, but leave me out of it," is a famous quote among newspapermen.

Yet his cool, wise business head has always been respected. The creative side of the business is entrusted to a committee of Walt Disney's trusted experts, but Roy Disney has the last word on policy and expenditures.

He is the undisputed head of the empire which started with a mouse.

On TV, the company has completed programs lasting more than 30 hours and is well advanced on a 45-square-mile project in Florida to be known as Disney World.

It will include an entertainment park, a City of Tomorrow, a supersonic industrial exhibit and the kind of airport Walt anticipated in 2067 A.D.

The Perfect Mate Looks Familiar

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — A recently-divorced South African woman consulted a computer recently when she wanted to find a new mate.

The woman had filled in a long questionnaire, listing the attributes she wished for in a male companion, and describing herself and her interests.

What she did not know was that her ex-husband had approached the same service.

When the large envelope, marked "confidential," slid under her door, she eagerly tore it open to discover the name of her "man in a million."

It was that of her former husband.

"I cannot tell you what a shock it was," she said. "In my questionnaire I said that I wanted someone who was attractive, of above average intelligence, and in a profession.

"My husband was none of these things."

Silver Theft Investigated

Suspended Sentences For Drug Offenders

VANCOUVER (CP) — Roger McPherson, 19, and Gary Mortimer, 19, both of Vancouver Monday were given suspended two-year sentences on charges of possession of marijuana. Each man was also ordered to post a $1,000 bond.

TORONTO model Shirley Ann Macdonald, 19, was named Miss Toronto at the annual police games. With her crown goes a new car, $500 in cash and the prospect of earning up to $20,000 in modelling fees.

Must Pay $72

A youth who admitted breaking a street light with a beer bottle was fined $50 Tuesday and ordered to pay $22 in damages.

Allan Job, 20, of Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, pleaded guilty to causing wilful damage when he appeared in central court.

Babushkas Losing Fight To Halt Mini-Skirt Fad

By MONICA BRADSHER

And the Russians are taking the hard line. One old woman in Gorky Park took a switch to an American girl and lashed the backs of her bare knees.

Around the Intourist hotels, the foreign currency shops and the International Film Festival, Russians ogle the most scantily, most gaudily-clad girls ever seen off the stage of the Boloshoi Ballet.

THE REAL THING

Now they're seeing the real thing—six to 10 inces above the knee—and the psychedelic colors seem as surprising as the brevity in the drab Moscow setting.

One girl at a film festival party wore a crocheted see-through "dress" of bathing-suit proportions over a body-stocking. Even the movie stars, not to mention people from the comparatively unsophisticated Soviet cultural scene, were shocked.

The babushka—the word means grandmother but applies to any little old Russian woman—in Gorky Park was not alone.

An Australian girl and another babushka were seen in a tug-of war all the way across a broad, busy street. The old woman was trying to pull the girl's hem down to her knees and the girl was frantically trying to escape.

"Creeping mini-ism" may take Moscow yet.

But the voice of the babushkas will not be stilled.

"I'll never shorten mine," declared one little old woman, sitting on a park bench in mid-claf-length black skirt. Her kerchiefs was firmly in place to show that she was a properly uniformed babushka.

"They're a disgrace, such women," said she. "So immodest.

"Know what I think? I spit on them.

"Pfui. Pfui."

Irreplaceable Film Burned

OTTAWA (CP) — A fire Sunday at Beaconsfield, Que., destroyed 1,000,000 feet of film that Peter Morris, curator of the Canadian Film Institute, called the "cornerstone of Canadian film archives."

The film was stored in a hangar by the National Film Board.

"Three decades of Canadian film-making went up in a puff," Mr. Morris said Tuesday. Most of it had been produced between 1920 and 1950.

In a brief to the state secretary's department three years ago, the institute warned that unless precautions were taken, the film would deteriorate, Mr. Morris said.

Included in the film lost was early footage of the Canadian Pacific Railway, shots of the Parliament Buildings before the 1916 fire and the first color film made in Canada.

HOME GARDEN

Tips for Cooking Fresh Grown Foods

BY HILDA BEASTALL

A strange condition exists today among young homemakers who have lived all their lives in either large cities without gardens or in apartments.

Hilda

In either of these circumstances, it is more than likely that a 20-year-old homemaker of today will not have had the experience of preparing and cooking vegetables and fruits freshly gathered from a home garden.

Sometimes it happens that the flavor of these fresh foods is so different from frozen and canned products that it is not immediately appreciated. I'll guarantee however, that continued exposure to these delicacies will win before long.

A 20-year-old with her first crop of carrots or beets to prepare may not know that the carrots need only a thorough cleaning with a stiff little brush before boiling in the smallest amount of water possible for 15 to 20 minutes; while beets can only be washed with the hands to prevent loss of the red juices.

None of the roots of beets are removed before boiling—they come away readily with the thin outer skin after cooking about half an hour for one-inch diameter beets.

The young leafy beet tops are boiled separately for 15 minutes and served like spinach, and the smallest, newest leaves can be eaten raw in salads.

Carrot tops are not used at all. Mature carrots and beets require a longer cooking period.

A few grains of salt added to the boiling water will keep peas a bright green, carrots a brilliant orange, and beets a sparkling red.

B.C. Sailors Long Overdue

NEW YORK (CP)—The U.S. Coast Guard has reported a notice has gone out to shipping to keep an eye out for two British Columbians who are weeks overdue in their sloop Sundowner on a transatlantic voyage from Falmouth, England, to New York.

Nothing has been heard from Geoff Godwin and Larry Rodney since they sent a radio message May 6, the coast guard reported.

They left Falmouth April 18, planning to sail to New York in three weeks.

The coast guard has classified the Sundowner as overdue. There are no plans for a search.

CHARM: The Ultimate Weapon

What is charm? Can you cultivate it or are you born with it? How many ingredients are there in its magic formula? Can a person "almost" or "partly" charm another person? Is charm more exacting in a woman or in a man? An intriguing article in the August Reader's Digest tells what charm is and what it is not . . . like wrinkling your nose, or having a winning laugh in your voice. What is the quality that can be the very essence of a woman's charm? What is really charming in a man? Learn the one thing that may reveal when a person doesn't have charm. Read "The Essence of Charm" in August Reader's Digest — on sale now.

$125 MILLION PROJECT

TORONTO (CP) — A high-rise apartment development, described as the largest privately assembled redevelopment project in Canada, Tuesday was proposed for the Borough of Etobicoke in the city's west end.

The $125,000,000 project, housing up to 23,000 persons in an area now occupied by about 1,400 residents of private homes, would be built in stages over a period of seven years, the Etobicoke planning board was told.

Arthur Mayse

Today I have a message for you from a French - Canadian friend of mine.

Her name is Pauline Houle and she lives and works in Montreal as a journaliste for a French-language publication called "La Canadienne". She is sharp, bright and knowledgeable; and today, she is in no mood to mince words about the affaire de Gaulle.

Here is what she had to say when I asked her by long-distance telephone to tell Victorians how she reacted to the utterances of the visitor who has whipped up a coast-to-coast tempest:

"I am very mad!

"This de Gaulle, we count him a senile old man. There is nothing we want from him or from France—nothing whatever.

"We are much more advanced than the French. Here in Quebec we are wealthy now, and making such progress as we never have before. You may be sure that is why he loves us.

"The students, they are the same everywhere. They live on excitement and they are always ready to make a big noise. But my friends and I are adult, and we are scared: we don't want a Cuba here."

★

Let me explain that to Mlle. Houle as to every true Montrealer, the Quebec that signifies is her own proudly revitalized city, the home of Expo, the industrial heartland and the centre of French-Canadian culture. It was the outlands that gave Daniel Johnson the premier's chair, not Jean Drapeau's Montreal.

"You ask me why Premier Johnson staged this de Gaulle presentation? His government has done little — hasn't even voted the money for September education — and he is afraid of losing the next election. He is making a play for the young vote.

"But believe me, my fellow-citizens are very mad about this, mad and ashamed.

"He (de Gaulle) doesn't understand the Quebec mentality. He is not well-informed, and the welcome along the highway deluded him. There is, of course, a great deal of sentiment there, because we were French in the beginning.

"But he did not understand that. He listened to the cheering and thought he was being hailed as a liberator.

"If there is a mistake he made in this world, this is it.

"Naturally, there has been much talk about this in the Expo press-room. I was informed there that Mayor Drapeau is also very mad.

"Why would he not be? What has happened is a contradiction of everything he believes in."

★

At this point, I suggested to our incensed Canadienne that other ideas might prevail in the Quebec that lies beyond the Montreal perimeter. She brushed the notion aside.

"The French-Canadian won't have any one telling him what to do," she insisted, her tone as vehement as her words. "We don't need France, although it appears that France needs us. Quebec is better in all ways than France!

"The thinking man and woman in this province has no wish to separate from Canada. We have good exchanges now, and much more understanding of each other. We cannot let this incident change that."

We had been talking quite some time — or rather Pauline Houle had been talking, and except for a question or two, I had been listening.

Now I asked her if she could summarize her feelings on the matter for the people of this city.

"Please tell them not to worry," she said. "In spite of the Separatistes, we French Canadians have never been so close as we are this year to the rest of you. Don't let this disturb the relationship."

So speaks one fervent Canadian, and despite present provocation, I hope you will keep her message in mind.

It's healed now but Harry stays on with SPCA worker Mrs. Rita Gieskens, following her about and perching on her shoulder when she pauses. It's a sadder life for the two fawns at right. Well meaning people picked them up in remote areas and brought them to the SPCA not realizing that fawns in the woods are seldom deserted. Their mom was probably looking on when they were kidnapped. Magistrate Withdraws From Case

Higher Court Trial Ordered for Cashier

Magistrate William Ostler today withdrew from the trial of cashier Elizabeth Ewen, who is charged with seven counts of theft under $50.

He said he would treat the trial so far as a preliminary hearing and commit the accused for trial in a higher court.

Mrs. Ewen, 41, of 290 Homer, pleaded not guilty to stealing sums of money from the city of Victoria between May 24 and June 5 of this year.

At the conclusion of the Crown's case, Magistrate Ostler pointed out the accused was employed in the magistrate's clerk's department and is indirectly under the magistrate's direction.

"The principals are too closely connected with the magistrate for me to fairly decide the case.

"Justice must be seen to be done," he added.

In Tuesday's hearing, the Crown alleged the accused had taken fines from people and had said the tickets could not be rung through the machine. Witnesses said they had paid fines and had received receipts marked "Pd." in pen with the amount of the fine written in.

NOT AVAILABLE

Files were checked and all the tickets referred to in the charges had been received in court but office copies were not available, said Neil McLeod, the court's accounting clerk.

Donald Fuller, cash register service manager said he had never heard of a cashier having trouble in inserting tickets into the two machines at the courthouse. He received only one trouble call and that involved a key.

SURVEY VESSEL TOWED OUT OF ALASKA ICE

Aquariums Sparring For Killer Whale Caught Off Island

By TERRY IZZARD

Hasty discussions were going on in Vancouver between governors of the city aquarium.

Mr. Macki discovered the killer in his purse seine net in the early hours.

While the Vancouver interests were deciding whether to make an offer, a representative of Marine Land in Los Angeles flew in this morning.

12 FEET LONG

Mr. Penfold said the whale is a youngster 12 feet long and weighing about a ton.

Vancouver has good reasons for wanting the mammal since it already has one in its dolphin pool.

Two were sold to San Diego aquarium. One of the two remaining kept by Mr. Griffin has since died.

ONE DIED

The whale craze began in 1955 when the first ever captured on the west coast went on show in Vancouver.

Affectionately know as Moby Doll, the big pet died a few months after capture.

Next to be captured was Namu, named after the B.C. village near where she was caught off northern Vancouver Island.

Vancouver's Skana will obey verbal commands and already performs a variety of tricks.

Whether they can survive the restrictions of captivity for long has yet to be determined.

Of the latest catch Mr. Penfold said: "She (or he) seemed quite docile. She was just swimming around in the net making no attempt to escape."

B.C. Saves $4 Million On Early Dam Finish

13 Months Ahead Of Pact Deadline

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

The first Columbia Treaty dam is full of water and will be declared formally operational on Monday to save British Columbia $4 million, Premier Bennett announced today.

He released a letter from B.C. Hydro co-chairman Dr. Hugh Keenleyside which said the moment the dam is declared operational the province will receive $12 million from the U.S. in agreed flood control benefits.

The official acceptance of the completed dam will be 13 months ahead of the treaty's deadline and eight months ahead of the negotiated sale agreement of downstream power to U.S. utilities.

The extra interest earnings of the earlier flood control payment and extra power sales will produce a net financial advantage to the province of almost $4 million, reducing the estimated $33.3 million cost of the Duncan Dam to $29 million, Dr. Keenleyside wrote.

DIRECT BENEFIT

Besides the money bonus coming from early completion of the purely-storage dam, B.C. itself already has benefited directly.

"The accelerated construction program permitted the Duncan project to store water during the recent flood season with the result that the level of Kootenay Lake was reduced by approximately two feet and the level of the Columbia River at Trail by approximately one foot during the peak of the 1967 floods," Dr. Keenleyside observed.

He added that the better control of annual runoff will increase power generation on the B.C. side of the border as well at the Cominco and West Kootenay companies' plants on the Kootenay River.

NO LOSS OF LIFE

B.C. Hydro will receive half the benefits of the increased power production at these private Canadian plants under the same general formula applying to U.S. downstream plants.

"I am particularly happy to be able to inform you that the Duncan Dam has been constructed without any loss of human life," Dr. Keenleyside added.

"It is not exaggerating to describe this as a quite phenomenal record. We know of no other comparable project of which it can be said."

Premier Bennett said he was gratified by the report but would make no comments on indications that the High Arrow dam near Castlegar also is about half a year ahead of treaty deadlines and may be storing water too this fall.

"I just want to talk about the Duncan today," he said. "One step at a time."

$500 Bonuses Paid 8,800 Home-Buyers

About $4.4 million has been paid out so far in the new $500 home-acquisition grants.

Premeir Bennett's finance department is issuing cheques at an average rate of $150,000 a day.

Mr. Bennett told a press conference today he is "greatly pleased" with the response to the grants scheme he introduced to the legislature last spring.

"Already 8,800 citizens of our province have received the home acquisition grant," he said.

"We have lots of further applications and they are being finally processed—the cheques going out—at an average of 300 a day."

He said it was clear that most applicants thoroughly understood the qualifications for receiving the grant because the processing report shows a rejection rate of only five per cent on applications.

OVER ESTIMATES

The figures indicate that the home-acquisition grant applications have outstripped maximum expectations this year.

Under the legislation, a $25 million fund was set up which was expected to produce annual interest income of about $1.5 million to cover the applications but Premier Bennett said the principal would be used if necessary to meet demands higher than this.

Next year, the grants are to go to $525 under a system of 5 per cent annual increments to keep pace with rising home-building costs and inflation but, because they are once-in-a-lifetime grants, the number of applications likely will decrease sharply in the second and succeeding years.

'Guest' Pays Fine of $50

An unwelcome guest was fined $50 in central court today when he pleaded guilty to causing wilful damage.

He went to visit an occupant at 1342 Esquimalt Road and when she refused to see him he went to the front of the building and smashed the window.

He was also ordered to make restitution of $30 for the damage.

$385 in Fines After Driver Flips His Car

A driver who walked uninjured from the car he had flipped over was fined a total of $385 in central court today.

George Berry, 18, of HMCS Qu'Appelle, pleaded guilty to impaired driving and being a minor in possession of liquor.

Court was told that Berry grazed a power pole while driving west on Skinner Ave. The car then struck a garage, slammed through a hedge and landed upside down on a lawn.

The accused admitted he had been drinking.

'LAND VALUES DICTATE IT'

Harbor Development ... Economic Necessity

By JIM HUME

The development of Victoria's waterfront between Johnson Street and the Causeway is essential if the city is to remain the economic hub of southern Victoria Island.

City manager Dennis Young said this morning that whatever decision city council ultimately makes on the location of a convention centre the waterfront problem must remain of prime concern.

One would see the centre located on Wharf Street as part of an urban renewal scheme designed to face-lift the area bounded by Johnson Street, Government, Wharf Street and the Causeway.

The other, a private development, would see the centre located in a downtown block bounded by Douglas, Pandora, Cormorant and Blanshard.

NEED DRASTIC ACTION

"Land values alone dictate that we must do something drastic in the waterfront area," said Mr. Young. "Along Government Street land assessments average around $12 per square foot but go as high as $58 per square foot.

"By comparision assessment values between Johnson Street and the Causeway along Wharf run as low as 81.73 cents a square foot.

"We just have to do something to bring that entire area into reasonable line as simple economic necessity. At present the assessed values do not even pay for the services in the area."

In a survey prepared for the city last month waterfront property between Yates and the Causeway showed a total assessment of $2.07 per square foot.

Of that the total land assessment is rated at 83 cents a square foot and the improvement assessment at $1.24.

"Compare that with the $58.68 per square foot total assessment for the property on which the post office stands and you get an idea of the seriousness of the situation," Mr. Young said.

"If Victoria is to maintain its role as the core of this entire area we just have to up-grade the waterfront between Johnson Street and the Causeway."

FOLDING SCHOOL sits on Willows schoolground waiting crane and bolts. Set up, it measures 24 by 40 feet and helps ensure against shift systems until new schools of a permanent nature are completed. School board has 19 of the portable units. Served with sewer and electricity, they cost $15,000. Some authorities believe they could also be adapted as convalescent units to relieve hospital crowding in Greater Victoria.

Q. When and where did the 10 greatest earthquakes occur? J.W.

A. The Encyclopedia Britanica lists five great earthquakes as Lisbon, 1755; New Madrid, Mo., 1811 and 1812; San Francisco, 1906, and Tokyo, 1923.

In more recent years many earthquakes have made front page news. One in Kansu, China, claimed 180,000 lives in 1920. At Messina in Italy in 1908, 75,000 lives were lost. In 1923, 70,000 lost their lives in Kansu, China, and 60,000 people died in Quetta, India, in 1935. There is a record of 830,000 dead in a China earthquake in 1556.

A Clean-Up Campaign Makes Walls Like New

By Penny Saver

The Saver household is doing it again—spring cleaning in the middle of summer. In the early morning when it's still cool, and in the evening, I've been puttering about sorting out closets and drawers, and attempting to get rid of "precious possessions" that nc one looks at from one year to the next. The advantage of summer cleaning is that the children are home from school so I can go intc consultation with the junior set when I'm trying to dispose of their old toys, clothes, etc. It never ceases to amaze me though that a closet that was perfectly tidy last summer is once again filled with treasures I know I threw away years ago.

My walls are going to get a thorough going over in my clean-up campaign too. The rooms with wall paper are the most difficult to clean, and I'd just about given up hope of removing the thin layer of gray that coats their surface. Wanting to do a really good job on them this year, I went to a local store, and inquired about a product for sprucing up wallpaper. They had just what I wanted. You can buy 16 ounces of this cleaner for 60 cents. Using half the carton, you roll a putty-like substance into a ball and rub it down the wall. The putty absorbs the grime and will leave the paper looking fresh and clean.

If you're doing some painting in your summer cleaning project, you'll welcome a product I found for paint removal. This cleaner has a lanolin base, so leaves the hands feeling soft and does not irritate the skin. It has a multitude of uses—great for removing grease stains or tar from the exterior of an automobile. Effective on any painted surface, this fabulous time-saver comes in one and 2½-pound containers, priced at 69 cents and $1.35 respectively.

The chips in the surface of the kitchen sink and on the draining surface have come under Penny's eagle eye, and I was pleased to learn that patching these spots would be a fairly simple matter. You can buy a small bottle of porcelain paint for repairing these damaged surfaces. This glaze will do wonders for a battle-scarred kitchen, and a bottle big enough for lots of retouching jobs costs 55 cents.

If you'd like to know where I found these dandy aids for your clean-up campaign, please give me a call at 382-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Are You Hiding Under Your Tent? Time to Diet

Women have been hiding in shifts. skimmers, tents, A-line dresses and muu-muus for years. Now the pressure is on! Belts and fitted-at-the-waist clothes are beginning to appear. It looks like a trend, so don't let it catch you with your bulges showing. This fashion has done more to ruin the feminine figure than anything since the frying pan was invented.

Lowman

This week is my group therapy week when all of my readers who are interested in losing weight meet through this column to consider that problem. I publish letters from some of the readers who followed my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan last winter. This letter says:

"Dear Josephine Lowman,

"I have been following your BIP diet and exercises and am happy to inform you that when I started I was wearing size 14 and now wear a size 11 dress. I am very happy about my new figure except for one area.

I am only 5 feet tall and have a size 32 inch bust. I have narrow shoulders and breasts that sag almost to my waistline! I have reduced my bust from 34 inches to 32 inches, but they have not firmed at all.

"I have been doing the exercise you describe in your booklet (making circles with the arms); but I would greatly appreciate any other exercises you can offer to reduce and firm the breasts. Should the exercises be done while wearing a bra on, Will this help firm them?"

When answering this reader I will also probably be answering many other women who have this or a similar bustline problem. The loss in inches came from the loss of weight; loss of fat in the bust itself.

The development of the underlying chest muscles can make the bust more prominent and increase the bust measurement. This can also lift the bust some if the condition is not too extreme. This reader is evidently very petite with small bones and an unusually large bust for her size.

Exercise may help some. However, I do not have circling of the arms in my BIP Kit. I will give you a better one today, which is in my BIP booklet. To answer a couple more questions, sleeping in a bra will not firm the bust. I think it best to do bust exercises without brassiere. Of course; plastic surgery can remedy a condition such as my reader describes.

Here is a good bust development exercise. Lie on your back with your arms straight out on the floor, palms toward the ceiling. You should have a weight in each hand (books will do). With stiff elbows; raise the arms upward slowly until they are fairly close together. Slowly lower the arms. Continue raising and lowering them.

If you would like to come out of the tent and shift in condition for the newer trend, if you need to lose a few pounds, you can do so in just eight weeks. If this is your goal; send for my BIP Kit. It gives you all of the information and help you need in order to do so. Send 25 cents plus 15 cents for postage and handling and your printed name and address. Send your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

When Skin Sags on Face and Neck

Even skin that sags and is no longer smooth, could be made firm and much younger looking. That "older look" usually appears first around the throat, but is comparatively easy to treat by very simple means that require no skill at all.

Get 2nd Debut with CEF 600 or CEF 1200 in double strength from your drug or dept. store and apply it gently to your throat and face each night before retiring. After just a few days, you will notice your skin becoming firmer again and smoother. That is because the 2nd Debut has revitalized your skin with a new supply of water from the surface clear into the inner skin.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Often, It's Mothers Who Need Help

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter signed "ASHAMED," from the mother who hollered at her little 10-year-old daughter, telling her to get out of the house, and she didn't care if she ever came back. And all because the child was a little slow getting dressed. After the child left, the mother sat down and cried and she wrote you a letter.

Abby, that mother could have been me a few years ago. I was also an "ashamed mother" for a good many years, crying after the children left for school because I had behaved so atrociously. Oftentimes I would use abusive language and scream at my children. Then I would hide and cry and pray for forgiveness.

My children were doing poorly in school, which prompted my doctor to suggest that I attend the Child Guidance centre in our area. I can't tell you how much good it did me. The counselling I got there was exactly what I needed. So please, Abby, tell other ashamed mothers not to be ashamed. To get help. And with it will come a happiness their whole family will share.

GRATEFUL MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: ASHAMED shouldn't think she is the only mother who loses her temper with her children and regrets it later. Sometimes I wonder how some children can stand their mothers. Last week I screamed like a maniac at my 10-year-old son. I would do anything in the world to keep him from getting hurt, yet I am the one who seems to hurt him most. I couldn't believe it was my voice saying all those horrible things to that boy.

Those temper fits left me with a churning stomach and raw nerves, so I finally went to my doctor, hoping he would give me something to calm my nerves. He gave me something all right. A good talking to. He explained that sometimes mothers take out all their anger and hurt on their children because they are always handy, and the poor little things can't fight back. I then realized that was my problem. And now that I understand why I acted as I did, I am better able to control myself.

Print this if it will help others realize why they are forever exploding all over their kids. It helped me.

FORMERLY ASHAMED

DEAR ABBY: I am another ASHAMED MOTHER, like the one who wrote to you. Let me tell you how I cured myself. I have five children. The oldest is 11. I used to blow my top when the kids would bicker and fight, which when you come right down to it is normal for all kids who are close in age. I would get real violent and yell like a mad woman at all of them for something one of them did. I knew this wasn't fair, but I couldn't help myself.

I finally got all the kids together and told them I hoped they realized that Mom was only human, and she wasn't always in a good mood. That sometimes she got grouchy and edgy, and they should remember that when she ranted and raved it didn't mean she loved them any less. Most parents don't give their children enough credit for understanding lots of things. Kids don't always mean what they say, and I explained that sometimes parents don't either.

God bless their little hearts. They listened and understood, and now we have a better relationship all the way 'round. Sign me, "a 28-year-old mother of five wonderful kids," or . . .

A New You by Emily Wilkens

DEAR EMILY WILKENS:

NOTES ON KNEES

I'm a mini-skirt fan. I'd like to know how to make my knees look more attractive. They're rather rough and discolored.

CAROLYN G.

Rubbing with the cut side of a lemon or cucumber will help bleach out discolorations. There are several creams and packs on the market which do the job well, too.

Smooth on baby oil or lotion before bedtime to speed roughness away.

Leg makeup need not be considered only a summertime aid. It's fine for perking up your knee appeal at any time of the year.

RAG DOLL SHAKE

When I first wake up in the morning, I'm so tired I can hardly force myself to get going once I get out of bed. Do you know of any quick waker-upper routine?

NANCY D.

Get wide awake with the Rag Doll Shake!

Stand in front of an open window, bend forward from the waist and yet your head and arms go completely limp. Then shake, shake, shake. The revivifying effect of blood rushing to your head will help drive away early morning lethargy.

Spring to a standing position and jump up and down several times to give your whole body a vestical shake-up that will keep you jumping all day long.

SANS SPRAY

I've tried various sprays designed to add gloss and shine to the hair, but they give a stiff effect and the odor is heavy. Is there any other way to make my hair shine and control wispiness?

RHODA N.

Rub the tiniest drop of pomade on your palm then run your brush over the pomade before brushing your hair. This process will not only give your hair natural shine, but should also control little tendrils at the hairline and fly-away ends.

TIMELY TACT

How can I learn to say the right thing at the right time? Whenever I open my mouth I seem to commit an awful faux pas.

LAURA D.

Think before you speak. Try to put yourself in the other person's place. What kind of response would you like to hear?

Remember that you'll never get into trouble for what you don't say, so take the time to mull things over in your mind before you blurt out the retort which seems so marvelously witty until the words are actually said.

DRY-EYED

I've been using a medicated base. However, the base is making the skin under my eyes feel tight and uncomfortable. Should I stop using it completely?

TANIA P.

Continue to use your medicated base everywhere but around the eye area. Under the eyes, use a creamy base that is a shade or two lighter than your regular foundation.

Couple Married in St. Joseph's Plan to Live at Prince George

Following a trip through the United States and the interior of British Columbia, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Eugene Bjur will make their home in Prince George.

The bride, the former Wendy Maureen Lacey, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett M. Lacey, 2337 Cadboro Bay Road, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Bjur, 451 Davida Avenue.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sheath gown of peau d'elegance, featuring a scalloped neckline and bodice overlaid with Chantilly lace. Scalloped detailing highlighted the neckline, and sleeves ended in lily points. A full cathedral train of Chantilly lace swept back from the shoulders and a bouffant veil, starred with daisy appliques, misted to the shoulders from a matching headpiece. A colonial bouquet of yellow roses and marguerite daisies with white ribbon points was carried by the bride.

Floor-length gowns of ice blue peau d'elegance were worn by her attendants. Styled on empire lines, the gowns featured tiny sleeves and softly draped necklines. Their floral headpieces were en tone with the gowns. Matron of honor Mrs. G. S. Wilson carried a colonial bouquet of daisies and yellow rosebuds with white ribbons. Bridesmatrons Mrs. W. Green and Mrs. J. Heffernan, and bridesmaid Miss Wendy Bjur, sister of the groom, carried marguerite daisies with ribbons en tone with their gowns.

The groom's brother Rooney M. Bjur, was best man, and ushering the guests were George S. Wilson, Ernest Zacharuk and Jbe Hawksworth.

Guests travelling to Victoria for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. F. Heffernan of Trail, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. D. Alfano of Kimberley; Mr. and Mrs. T. Bjur of Youbou; Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Wilson of Maple Bay; and Mr. and Mrs. K. Waltt of Vancouver.

Gown Enhanced With Guipure Lace

Delicate Guipure lace formed the empire-line bodice and full-length sleeves of the gown worn by Margaret Ann Gibbons when she became the bride of Douglas William Reeder. The floor-length sheath skirt of the gown was of peau d'elegance. A full-train of similar fabric, outlined with daisy appliques, swept back from the waistline. Her tiered veil misted softly to her shoulders from a wedding ring headpiece of white daisies. She carried two white orchids, nestled in stephanotis and ivy, in her cascade bouquet.

Baskets of pink larkspur and white chrysanthemums decorated Centennial United Church when Rev. Cecil Whitmore heard marriage vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Watson Gibbons, 906 Parklands Drive, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hedley Reeder of Vancouver.

As the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, organist David Palmer played "St. Anthony Chorale."

Mrs. Ray Anthony was matron of honor for her sister in a gown fashioned with an empire-line bodice of deep pink brocade and skirt of pale pink peau de soie. She wore small feathered white carnations in her hair and carried similar flowers with stephanotis and ivy in her bouquet.

Similar outfits were worn by the bridesmatrons, Mrs. Cliff Henry and Mrs. Doug Chadsey, the groom's cousin.

John Worobec, Vancouver, was best man, and ushering the guests were the groom's cousin, Rick Higgs, Vancouver, and Wayne McDonald.

A three-tier wedding cake, made by Mrs. John Quaife, centred the head table at the reception which followed in Wolf's Rathskeller. Wilf Cain proposed the toast to the bride.

Theatrical Esterel Opens Paris Fashion Showings

PARIS (Reuters) — Jacques Esterel opened the Paris week of fall and winter collections Monday with a theatrical collection of capes and culottes inspired by Spain and the aficionados of the bull ring.

Esterel's eccentric fashions appear more suited to the stage than the street.

Full, circular matador capes endorse a long hemline, worn with flared culottes or trousers and the glove-tight black vinyl boots that accompany every model from morning till midnight.

He pairs his long capes and trousers that end three inches below the kneee with a snug natural waistline and wide leather or fabric belts. Many belts are up to six inches wide.

The full-flared trousers are accompanied by blouse bolero tops or long princess-shaped tunics, vented at the sides to show the culottes made of a contrasting fabric.

The keynote of the Esterel collection is black, which he revives for every hour of the day.

Solid black capes, gaucho pants, boots and flat-crowned sombreros make up the street costumes occasionally relieved with a colored blouse or long trailing scarf wrapped around the throat with one end streaming down the back.

Late-day clothes continue the culotte skirts, cut in one piece and jump-suits with deep decolletes edged in rhinestones.

They Get Dry Out There With All That Water!

By DON DINGWALL

CHEMAINUS—What is the chief attraction to tourists of this port of call?

She is gathering statistics on behalf of the Chamber to see if it is justified in pressing federal authorities for improved docking facilities and a harbor breakwater.

GOT ACTION

By making rumbling noises in the past the Chamber has already got action.

Work is in progress on replacing two floats at the government wharf.

Meantime Mary stands on the dock, pencil poised.

She confronts visitors with questions about the size and type of their boat, port of registration, reasons for calling, how long they will stay.

Mary invites tourists' suggestions for improvements of the harbor facilities.

She says the most frequent answer about why they come to Chemainus is to stock up at the liquor store.

They also shop for groceries, gas, ice and water.

Few mention any thought of sightseeing although a number subsequently tour the MacMillan, Bloedel sawmill and come away impressed.

The 19 boats which came into Chemainus Monday was the largest one-day total so far this summer.

Most stop only a few hours and only remain overnight if they have engine trouble or there is bad weather.

Since Mary started the job July 5 a total of 162 persons have signed the visitors' book.

QUEEN CANDIDATE

Vice-president of Chemainus Chamber, Rex Hollett says the basic idea is to gather information to support pressure on the government for a harbor breakwater.

This has been a Chamber project for several years.

He said employing a tourist counsellor for the first time is proving worthwhile, and the statistics will spotlight the need for a commercial marina development at Chemainus.

CLINGS TO BOAT ONLY 200 FEET FROM SHORE

Fisherman Fights Sea for 3 Hours

Although he could easily have swum to shore, Mundy was afraid of being dashed against the jagged rocks of Amphitrite Point.

However, it was his closeness to shore which eventually saved him.

Mr. Edwards called the nearby plant of B.C. Packers, which sent fisherman Robert Kimoto out in his skiff with son Ted, 20.

Risking their own lives by heading into the breakers, the two manoeuvred alongside Donald's overturned boat and dragged the near-unconscious man from the water.

The entire rescue operation was carried out in darkness.

Islands to Stay Logging Company Tells Village

LAKE COWICHAN — Village residents have been assured by Pacific Logging Ltd. it does not intend to remove small islands from Cowichan River.

Manager Harold Hobson gave the assurance Tuesday in a letter to A. E. Castley.

He said there is mutual agreement between fisheries officers, village public works supervisor and the company to chop down the brush on the islands during the summer.

Later the brush will be burned so the flow of the river is not impeded during high water in the winter months.

This action has been endorsed by village council.

Action by Pacific Logging came as a result of complaints that logging debris was being hung up on these islands and causing erosion of the river banks.

TRUCK WHEELS CRUSH NANAIMO TODDLER

She was crushed when driver Bill Drummond, of Ladysmith, started up and backed over her, RCMP said.

Glanda died two hours later in Nanaimo Hospital. An inquiry has been ordered.

DIVER RECOVERING FROM 'BENDS'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Alex McCracken, 54-year-old Nanaimo diver, is recovering today in a decompression chamber at Vancouver General Hospital from an attack of the bends.

He is reported in satisfactory condition.

McCracken and his brother Laurie were working near Sandspit on the Queen Charlotte Islands to raise a sunken tug owned by Crown Zellerbach (Canada) Ltd.

He suffered the bends Monday, a diver's disease caused by extreme water pressure, and was flown to Vancouver later for treatement.

The brothers, owners of Island Divers Ltd. were working in the Renner's Pass area off Morseby Island, southernmost of the Queen Charlotte group.

Cougar on Prowl

DUNCAN—At least one cougar is roaming the outskirts of Duncan and the government predator hunter is only waiting a tip from someone to go after it.

Game warden Jack Fox thinks the cougar is the female which was with the kitten shot and killed by Bob Bradshaw in the Glenora district last Wednesday.

Dale Harrision, 20, and Dan McClure, 18, were startled Monday night when a cougar appeared in the headlights of their car on Fairbridge Road.

The cougar ran ahead of them until Harrison leaned on the horn.

Warden Fox said Tuesday: "We're just waiting for a hot tip on the female cougar's whereabouts to get the dogs out after her.

"There's a good chance she'll take off. It's not that a cougar is going to eat anyone up but in a settled area we like to get rid of them."

Mr. Fox said: "This is the time of year all animals are wandering. They are changing their habitat, going from summer to winter ranges.

"It's not a lack of food but if we're going to have trouble with cougar now is the time."

Man Fined $25 Over Junk Cars

CHEMAINUS — In the first case under a new municipal by-law, Victor Weid of Henry Rd., Chemainus, was convicted on Monday.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of having unused cars on his property without shielding them from public view.

Municipal peace officer Bill Currie said Weid, a millworker, had junk cars in his yard and neighbors had complained about their unsightliness.

Magistrate Lance Heard imposed a $25 fine.

MIXUP AT JUBILEE

63 Beds Empty But People Wait

There were 63 empty beds at Royal Jubilee Hospital Monday despite a district-wide patient waiting list of 2,623.

The figures were released by the hospital Tuesday to correct various unofficial complaints that 100 beds were empty.

Royal Jubilee officials said the contradictory situation in the middle of the much-publicized bed crisis was due mainly to a construction problem.

Last year plans were laid for complete renovation of the top floor of the south block for laboratory expansion. The work entailed some additional work on the floors beneath.

With this in mind advance bookings were curtailed for the period beginning July 1, when work was to have started.

In the interim, however, estimates for the work leaped ahead of the funds available. What was to have been a $650,000 project became an $800,000 project and delays ensued. The work is still not underway.

But the hospital has been unable to fill the gap in the bookings. Many patients had also planned ahead for periods they could take off from work. Few were able to change their plans at the last moment.

The hospital said also that the requirements of specialized wards create periods of bed vacancy. Maternity cases dropped recently and at present only 35 out of 60 beds are in use.

It is impossible to trundle these beds into other sections of the hospital. No wards are available. And it is all but impossible to give necessary care to other types of patients in the maternity wing.

The same applies to the isolation ward where only 18 out of 29 beds are in use today, and in some other specialty wards.

The hospital official said also that summer has an impact in bed demand. Many people put off elective treatment if they can and summer holidays have an effect. Also, some health problems, such as respiratory ailments, are eased by summer weather.

It was pointed out that up until the end of June the hospital was operating at 91.35 per cent of capacity compared with 87 per cent in the same period of 1966.

The 2,623-person waiting list at Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's included 2,404 elective treatment cases and 219 urgent cases.

U.S. Bomber Crashes Killing Two Crewmen

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (AP) An EB57 twin-jet U.S. Air Force bomber on its way to Alaska for an air defence exercise crashed while landing Tuesday, killing the two crewmen aboard.

Names of the victims were withheld.

A spokesman at the Alaskan Air Command at Elmendorf Air Force Base near Anchorage said the plane was en route from New York to Fairbanks, Alaska, and was making a refuelling stop.

Archie Gillespie, a reporter for the Yukon Daily News, who witnessed the crash, said the plane, one of a flight of 13 "was in the glide path about 300 yards from the runway when it looked as if it stalled. It hit near the end and disintegrated."

Another witness was Ken Shortt, editor of the newspaper. He said only the tail section remained intact and flipped down the runway while several explosions occurred in what was left of the main section.

He said despite the crash and the debris on the field, the other planes in the flight landed without incident.

$100 MILLION PRICE TAG ON WASHINGTON STATE PROPERTY

Conservationists, Wildlife Groups Protest Mine in Park Area

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—Far up a winding river valley in the Cascade Mountain high country, a team of geologists is studying the feasibility of cutting an open-pit copper mine.

The project has touched off heated debate about the United States' 1964 Wilderness Act, designed to preserve as untouched wilderness a number of areas across the U.S.

Kennecott Copper Co. Inc., is considering an open-pit mine in the Glacier Peak Wilderness Area, a rugged 458,500-acre section included in the 1964 law.

State and national conservation groups have vehemently protested the plan and question whether a clause permitting mining in wilderness areas is compatible with the rest of the law.

The act prohibits most forms of mechanical or industrial activity in order to make sure the wilderness areas "are untrampelled by man."

However, the bill was amended in Congress to extend mining claims to 1984 and requires the Forest Service, administrator of the wilderness areas, to permit "reasonable" road access, transmission lines and other facilities necessary for a mining operation.

Conservationists say open-pit minig is inherently in violation of the purpose of the law.

Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) chairman of the Senate Interior Committee and one of the backers of the wilderness act, said he has asked the Forest Service to find a way to block Kennecott's proposed activities.

In New York a Kennecott spokesman said the company had nothing to say about the situation beyond the statement of Frank R. Milliken, its president, at the annual meeting May 2.

At that time, Milliken said: "Final decision on whether to go ahead with development of the property will not be made until our engineering and economic studies now under way are completed."

The firm, through its subsidiary, Bear Creek Mining Co., owns 350 acres in the area and holds unpatented claims on an additional 2,650 acres. The proposed mine would require a 15-mile access road from the boundary of the wilderness area.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

It's a long way from the old dusty celluloid trails of the defunct Maverick series to the smooth, almost-too-slick "The Saint," but Roger Moore seems not to have suffered at all.

Stephen

The syndicated adventure series of The Saint holds down a prime time Sunday slot for NBC-TV and a Monday night period for CBC-TV. The program is a summer replacement and another of the long line of British products filling up North American airwaves.

Among Moores' first television roles was that of Beau Maverick in the series still to be seen on Channel 11 Sundays. It was a third banana role in a tongue-in-the-cheek western series which launched James Garner to stardom and produced a very capable actor in Jack Kelly.

Moore has managed to transfer the tongue-in-cheek qualities of Maverick to the color adventure series of The Saint with satisfactory results.

There was an overwhelming I've-seen-all-this-before-and-done-better look about the program which was James Bondish and gimmick-filled with situations highly improbable.

Today the character has been straightened out and again we have a Robin Hood quality which made the black-and-white versions of several years ago so popular.

The series has meant success for Moore and rates high on the popularity list of U.K. television. However, as with The Avengers, The Baron and similar other British products it will be kept on the replacement shelf by the American networks who are still trying desperately to satisfy the public with their home-brew products.

ONE BIT: The newly created provincial Department of Travel Industry has been responsible for the making of a new film on skiing in B.C., "Ski B.C.," a 15-minute color production is destined for distribution on Canadian and U.S. television sports programs.

(Lovely Old Saanich Homestead)
TREES AND MEADOWS
OLD FARM HOUSE AND WEE COTTAGE

It's on the Old West Saanich Rd., not too far out, just the same as I remember it 30 years ago. Tall trees, cow pastures, chicken runs, and goose wallows. A little brook springs to life in the fall, and bubbles through the old orchard. 1700th generation squirrels frolic in the tall firs, and Zip Coons worry the hens at the witching hour . . . There is the old six-roomed farm home, much in need of renovating, and a small cottage that once housed the hired man and his good wife. Nature has been taking over in the latter years . . . but in a rather charming manner.

De Gaulle Roasted in U.K. For Separatist Flirtation

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — While the British government trod softly around the prickly issue, Britain's national newspapers today loosed a near-unanimous flood of condemnation upon French President de Gaulle for his flirtation with Quebec separatism.

Editorial writers pulled out a drawerful of adjectives—rude, ill-advised, astounding, alarming—to describe his espousal of the "Free Quebec" cry in a Montreal speech Monday.

Cartoonists lampooned the general as a modern-day William of Normandy, the Conqueror; as a transatlantic French revolutionary and as a belated rescuer of the defeated Montcalm.

CANADA'S CONCERN

Wilson, in the Commons, told a questioner that events in Canada "are matters for the Canadian government and not for me."

Likewise, the official foreign spokesman deadpanned a "no comment" when asked at his press briefing whether the British government now would strengthen the Channel Islands, off the French coast.

The press lambasted the French chief of government in one of the fiercest concentrations of criticism upon the head of a friendly nation unleashed here in a long time.

A theme of the strictures is that Gaullist Anglophobia has burst out again, tangled up with such elements as pride of French ancestry and the general's long - standing fixation over American "domination." Some writers consider he was taking a backhander at the United States.

On this theme, the mass-circulation Daily Mirror headlines its editorial "A sad performance," but it adds:

"He is behaving outrageously by meddling in the internal affairs of the country where he is a guest."

Even The Financial Times drops its customary preoccupation with business to devote its lead editorial to de Gaulle, calling his performance "nothing less than astounding."

Many of his own people, it adds, "are unlikely to support a policy of stirring up trouble indiscriminately."

The Guardian heads its editorial, "De Gaulle beyond the fringe," and observes that he "wants to go on tilting at Anglo-Saxon windmills as long as he lives."

The Times pictured the incident as part of "the long, sad process of the general's erratic decline." It said he "was a very great man but is not now a very sensible one." He had offended a friend — Canada — without weakening the enemy of his dreams—the U.S.

Another 'Sinister' Plot To Weaken Ties With U.S.

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — President de Gaulle's playing to the French-Canadian gallery is seen here as another sinister Gaullist plot to attack the U.S. — in this case to weaken Canadian ties with its neighbor.

That's a main implication in the heavy press coverage being given the French president despite such distractions as the Detroit riot, worst in U.S. history.

"With the unerring accuracy of a sadistic dentist, Charles de Gaulle has drilled straight to the most sensitive nerve in Canada's domestic anatomy, and has proceeded to probe it gleefully at every possible occasion during his current official visit," says The Evening Star editorially.

"Having fanned the flames of insurrection, the French president did his best to disrupt the extraordinary friendship that exists between the U.S. and Canada. Canadians, he warned, mus find ways to protect their independence from contamination from Canada's colossal neighbor to the south."

It concludes by saying de Gaulle "did not however suggest what Canada should do about nutty foreign visitors who take it on themselves to meddle in Canada's internal affairs."

The Washington Post, in a dispatch from Paris, says de Gaulle's comments has aroused some concern there in political circles and "the consensus appears to be that de Gaulle's words are aimed less at Ottawa than at Washington."

It says de Gaulle "seems to have ticketed the Ottawa government as a mere emanation of the U.S., if only because 80 per cent of the foreign investment there comes from the U.S."

In New York, The Daily News says in an editorial Prime Minister Pearson would be commended by other Western nations if he asked de Gaulle to end his Canadian tour now.

Under the heading Height of Impudence, the newspaper says de Gaulle's call for a free Quebec "is much the same as if President Johnson were to go to Pairs and howl: "Overthrow de Gaulle, mes amis — he's no good."

If Prime Minister Lester Pearson were to ask de Gaulle to end his Canadian tour right now, we think Pearson would be applauded free-worldwide."

. . . HAPPY

sometimes with an insistance more subtle".

He said Quebec had also inherited from France the "cult of liberty".

"We would no longer be French if we were not devoted to liberty," he said, "not only individual liberty but collective liberty."

Johnson said that the people of Quebec believed that "all nations, small or great, have the right to live and to the mastery of their destiny."

He said France and General de Gaulle had been champions of liberty.

"If there is one country which cannot be accused of imperialistic aims," he maintained, "it is France, which has led so many young nations to the fullness of sovereignty."

Despite the striking similarity between his speech of Tuesday evening and the statements that have been making headlines for General de Gaulle, Johnson has been shying away from making any comment on the general's controversial headlines.

He just smiles and ducked away Tuesday when reporters buttonholed him at Expo and asked him what he thought of the president's Montreal speech Monday.

Other members of the cabinet have also refused to commit themselves by as much as a word.

SUPRRISED

One man who was as much surprised as anybody, but also frankly delighted, was Pierre Bourgault, president of the dominant separatist party, The Rassemblement Pour L'independance Nationale.

"I had no idea he would go anything like as far as that" Mr. Bourgault said.

The separatist leader said the real importance of General de Gaulle shouting "Vive Le Quebec Libre," was in the public reaction that followed it.

"What counts is not that he said it, but that thousands cheered him," Mr. Bourgault contended.

"And thousands of people who would not have dared to whisper such a phrase themselves until now, have taken on a completely new outlook."

Mr. Bourgault predicted that English-speaking Canadians would react with a sudden hardening toward the French-speaking.

He felt this reaction could only speed up the separation of Quebec from Canada but also increased the danger that the separation would be violent.

Did French Leader Fumble Ball?

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal officials were convinced Tuesday that French President Charles de Gaulle, renowned as a world leader with a deft diplomatic touch, has fumbled badly with his speeches in Quebec giving support and comfort to separatists.

People well acquainted with the general's past record found it impossible to explain how he could be caught in what is interpreted as a monumental misreading of the situation regarding Quebec's place in Confederation.

In past statements on complicated foreign and international questions, President de Gaulle has usually been careful to avoid taking rigid positions and putting himself in a tight box. Frequently, such statements have been marked by a degree of ambiguity that made possible conflicting interpretations.

His cry in Montreal Monday night, "Vive le Quebec libre"—rallying call of the separatists—contradicted this record. On the surface at least it appeared to put him squarely on the side of those in Quebec seeking the breakup of Confederation.

There were those who questoned whether Gen. de Gaulle knew what he was saying—whether he grasped the full import of his words.

Others insisted that the president's remark could only have been the product of careful premeditation. The French leader, they noted, has a reputaion for weighing his every word.

WRONG OUTLOOK

A widely held view was that, premeditated or not, his statement reflected a fundamental misunderstanding of the true state of affairs in French Canada.

Only a small percentage of Quebecers are spearatists, it was noted. The majority, while they would like to see improvements in the workings of Confederation, do not want to see their province pull out of it. At the same time, competent observers found it hard to conceive of a meaningful association between France and Quebec except in the cultural field.

In Canada's capital, many French-Canadians were as distrubed by President de Gaulle's remarks as English-Canadians.

Observers saw elements of several Gaullist characteristics in his performance at Montreal and earlier at Quebec City and along the highway route between those two cities which he traversed Monday in a triumphal motorcade.

They included his well-known distrust of Anglo-Saxons, expressed in the admonition to French-Canadians to be masters of their own destiny, his chauvinism and intense nationalism and his "philosophy of liberation" from the great powers.

According to the last concept, smaller countries and peoples are in danger of losing their indentities through the massive economic might of Russia and the United States. Other Anglo-Saxon peoples are loosely bracketed with the U.S. "hegemony".

STRIKE VOTE ON THURSDAY

Twelve Victoria employees of W. H. Malkin Ltd. wholesale grocers are eligible to vote Thursday with about 150 B.C. employees considering strike action.

Strike votes are set for all Malkin grocery operations, following a weekend meeting of negotiators for Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union in which a counter-proposal for settlement was made.

Massive Guard of Honor Greets Pope at Shrine

IZMIR, Turkey (AP)—Pope Paul turned today from the diplomatic and unity aspects of his trip to Turkey to visit the early Christian shrines of Izmir and nearby Ephesus.

It was at Ephesus that the apostle Paul, from whom the Pope took his papal name, issued one of his greatest epistles. According to some Roman Catholic tradition, the Virgin Mary lived there towards the end of her life.

Pope Paul, the first Roman Catholic pontiff to visit Turkey in 1,200 years, flew in a Turkish airliner from Istanbul on the Bosporus to Cigli, a military base just outside Izmir.

The top religious leaders of the various faiths in Turkey, Moslem, Christian and Jewish, saw him off on his pilgrimage. The Pope and Patriarch Athenagoras of the Orthodox Church embraced twice for the kiss of peace in farewell.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Douglas Wilson, age 12, of Oxford, Nebraska, for his question:

The word "comet" was coined from older words meaning "long hair". The showy visitors reminded ancient astronomers of long golden tesses trailing in the wind. Modern astronomers do not agree about the golden hair. But they do agree that the trailing streamers are blown by stiff cosmic breezes.

A comet's brief glory is borrowed from the sun. Out in space it is a cold, dark object traveling around an immense orbit. If it happens to be a comet that visits our skies, it begins to glow near the orbit of Jupiter. And glowing materials can be identified by spectra anaysis. Astronomers know its major ingredients and they also know something of the stupendous outpouring of solar radiation. They can estimate what most likely happens to the comet as it sweeps in its U-turn close around the sun. But at present, the experts are not certain of all details of the tail's formation.

The factors involved are the pushing force of solar radiation and its effect on the ingredients in the speeding comet. About 80 per cent of the big dirty snowball is a mixture of frozen water, methane and ammonia. Frozen in the icy mass are meteoric specks of iron and nickel, silicon and sodium, manganese, aluminum and calcium. Its total weight is one tenth that of water. And this little lightweight is exposed to at least two stupendous forces pushing out from the sun. These forces and the comet's speed are stronger than the sun's mighty pulling power of gravity.

Long, Luminous Tail

Instead of being pulled into the sun, fragments of the comet's materials are pushed away in a long, luminous tail that points away from the sun. As the comet nears the orbit of Jupiter, its outer crust of ices evaporates and forms a halo of glowing gases. This golden halo grows as the comet nears the sun. Light exerts pressure and the pressure of sunlight begins to push back a budding tail of glowing gas molecules. The sun also pours out a solar wind of energetic ions. After the comet crosses the orbit of Mars, the pressure of sunlight and the blasting solar wind push back its tail to perhaps 60 million miles or more.

Every moment, more material evaporates and joins the comet's trailing tail. Its gaseous molecules absorb ultraviolet rays from the sun and transform them into visible light. Other fragments add to the glowing glory merely by reflecting sunlight. Sunlight and solar wind push outward, always outward, forcing the comet's tail to point away from the sun. As the comet makes its fast U-turn, the tail swings even faster. Every moment, fresh streams of fragments from the comet borrow the golden glory of the sun. When the U-turn is completed, the comet speeds back into space. The pressures continue to push away from the sun. Now the glowing gases stream on ahead and the comet follows its golden tail.

There is still a lot to be learned about the nature of the comet's tail. Its gases ore molecules of carbon with nitrogen and hydrogen combined with atoms of oxygen, carbon or nitrogen. These molecules are severed easily by sunlight and driven in glowing streamers away from the sun. The tail may be huge and bright enough to be seen at noon. But its gases are very thin. It is estimated that one glowing particle in the razzle-dazzle tail might have to travel a million miles to meet its nearest neighbor. No wonder the sun's mighty pressures can drive back this filmy material with such determined force.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Bruce Mann, age 13, of Enid, Oklahoma, for his question:

Are baby procupines born with quills?

The infants are born in the spring. There may be two or even three in the brood, but often a porcupine is an only child. At birth, he weighs a pound, which is somewhat more than an infant black bear cub. The youngster is bright-eyed and wide-awake from the first day. He is fully clothed, and looks like a small copy of his prickly mother. However, his spines are soft and pliable. He spends his first few days in a leafy nest, lined with grasses and root fibers. If two or three infant porcupines, each a foot long and quite active, were clothed in stiff prickles, these early days of life would be very difficult.

Junior, however, does not remain long in the nest. His prickles are quite hard and stiff after about ten days. Then the independent youngster starts off to make his own way in the world. Next fall, he may weigh 15 pounds and he is old enough to start dating.

Temporary Lapse Of Memory

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Years ago I wrote an article about those men who suddenly disappear and who, when weeks or months later they return, say they have no memory of where they have been. I have in my library a book by a British Army officer who, when he got back home from such a spell of amnesia (loss of memory), for a time had trouble remembering even who he was. In some cases physicians will doubt the man's story, but in others, there is no reason to doubt what he said.

Alvarez

I have talked to some of these men who apparently had had either a severe "little stroke," an atypical epileptic seizure, or an alcoholic "blackout." Such disappearing spells are called fugues. In many a case, the real basic diagnosis should be a "seizureless epilepsy."

The most remarkable story of such a fugue that I ever heard was told me by a woman who came with an episodal type of brief spells of abdominal pain. Recognizing an epileptic equivalent, I asked her if anyone among her relatives had ever disappeared for a while, and she said, "Yes, here's a story that you will hardly believe. My father, who was a violent-tempered man, hard to live with (like many a seizureless epileptic) one day married my mother. Later, as they were having breakfast, he got up and without any explanation, left the dining room. He returned three weeks later, to say that he had no idea why he had left or where he had been. For awhile, he had difficulty remembering who he was, or where his old home was."

A good friend of mine, an able man, had an eccentric father. One day this father's wife sent him to the corner grocery with $5 and instructions to buy a bottle of milk and a loaf of bread and to bring back the change. The man returned six months later with the milk, the bread, and the change! He could not say why he had left or where he had been.

One can easily see why, when a soldier who is found AWOL (absent without leave) claims amnesia, hoping thus to escape punishment, physicians doubt if he had a genuine fugue. Similarly, when a man disappears and contracts a bigamous marriage, one has doubts about his claim that when he started on a new life, he had no memory of his old one.

★ ★ ★

For years physicians and lay persons have been afraid of the possible bad effects that X-rays could have on the sex glands of men and women and children, and perhaps unborn children. Hence we physicians, when X-raying the lower part of the abdomen, take great care to avoid overexposure of the sex glands. Now I read that scientists at the Jackson Laboratory, in Bar Harbor, Maine, have exposed 150,000 mice to a good-sized dose of X-rays, and have looked for resultant injuries to the baby mice. Actually, they have found very few such injuries. About the only difference between the X-rayed mice and the ones not X-rayed was a four per cent reduction in the size of the baby-mice whose fathers had been exposed to the rays.

Smooth, Fluid, Clingy Trousers Latest Fashion Wear for Men

TORONTO (CP) — Morris Gay, a Toronto designer, has shaken the men's fashion world with a zipper concealed in the side of men's tubular-legged trousers.

The outfits in his fall and winter collection, to be shown in London this year, are smooth, fluid, clingy and made almost entirely of double-knit jersey worsted.

For casual wear, Mr. Gay produced a shorts-and-cardigan set again with side zipper. The set comes in pale blue and chocolate brown, with matching or contrasting trim at the hip band and cuffs.

Formal wear is far from penguin-like, according to Mr. Gay. His jacket, a jacquard knit with a slight flair, has no vents, no collar, no lapels.

Mr. Gay's host suit is olive green with a salmon thread design through it. The salmon shirt has a built-in cravat and long cuffs and the trousers have a cumberbund waistband.

'TOO IMPORTANT TO IGNORE' HE TELLS CAMPBELL

Curtis Hits Mayor for Skipping Convention

"This federation is too important to be ignored, and I don't know what the mayor could be doing that's more urgent," he said.

"It's very poor for the mayor of the largest city in British Columbia," Mr. Curtis said in a statement.

An atmosphere of hostility among the 600 mayors and reeves from across Canada was evident because of Gen. de Gaulle's speeches since his arrival Sunday at Quebec City.

There were loud boos by federation delegates Monday night when reference was made to him during a dinner after Premier Daniel Johnson, scheduled to act as host, failed to show up.

The federation adopted a number of resolutions, among them one which called on the federal government to initiate talks with the provincial governments to set up a joint program to reduce pollution.

A report on education showed that the cost of primary and secondary school education is increasing "substantially."

It said the increase was about 300 per cent in the 12-year period between 1955 and 1966 and that the increase has become a heavy burden on the municipalities.

Property tax is far from having the elasticity of income tax, the report stated. For this reason alone the use of the property tax as a major revenue source is "unrealistic and should be avoided unless we are to accept ever spiralling mill rates."

Angry de Gaulle Cuts Visit

Text of Statement By Prime Minister

"I am sure that Canadians in all parts of our country were pleased when the president of France received such a warm welcome in Quebec.

However, certain statements by the president tend to encourage the small minority of our population whose aim is to destroy Canada; and, as such, they are unacceptable to the Canadian people and its government.

"The people of Canada are free. Every province of Canada is free. Canadians do not need to be liberated. Indeed, many thousands of Canadians gave their lives in two world wars in the liberation of France and other European countries.

Canada will remain united and will reject any effort to destroy her unity.

"Canada has always had a special relationship with France, the motherland of so many of her citizens. We attach the greatest importance to our friendship with the French people. It has been, and remains, the strong purpose of the government of Canada to foster that friendship.

"I hope that my discussions later this week with General de Gaulle will demonstrate that this purpose is one which he shares."

'Departure Understandable ... Circumstances Regretted'

"The Canadian government has been informed that General de Gaulle is not coming to Ottawa as planned and will be returning immediately to Paris by air after the completion of today's program in Montreal.

"General de Gaulle's decision to cut short his visit to Canada is understandable under the circumstances. But those circumstances, which are not of the government's making, are greatly to be regretted."

Lionel Chevrier, commissioner general for visits of heads of state, will be on hand to say "Goodbye" to General de Gaulle when he flies from Montreal to France.

FINAL SALUTE in Canada was extended French President Charles de Gaulle this morning by students of Montreal University dressed as 17th century French marines. It marked the windup of de Gaulle's Canadian tour before his departure later today for home.

SEPARATISTS DEMONSTRATE AT CITY HALL

MONTREAL (CP)—Quebec separatists today demonstrated among more than 1,000 persons who gathered in front of city hall as French President de Gaulle wound up a morning tour of some of Montreal's landmarks.

Gen. de Gaulle waved from his limousine to the swelling crowd at city hall. At least three signs of a separatist group, le Rassemblement de l'Independence Nationale, were held high.

Small groups chanted "Quebec libre,, and "on veut de Gaulle" Free Quebec, we want de Gaulle. Shouts of "Quebec for Quebecers" were also heard.

Happy to Have Helped Quebec . . . de Gaulle

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Bureau

MONTREAL — President Charles de Gaulle's response late Tuesday to a diplomatic rebuke by Prime Minister Pearson sharpened the direct confrontation between the two leaders.

After Mr. Pearson said that statements by President de Gaulle encouraging Quebec separatism were "unacceptable to the Canadian people and its government," the president took the first opportunity that offered itself to say that he was very happy with what he believed his Quebec visit had achieved.

"Neither you nor I have wasted out time," he told Premier Daniel Johnson at a dinner ending his three full days in Quebec.

"Perhaps something has happened," he said.

And he added that "if on this occasion the president of the republic has been able to be of use to the Frenchmen of Quebec he will be very deeply happy."

Federal cabinet ministers, including External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who had been on the original guest list, did not attend the dinner in France's Expo pavilion in honor of the government of Quebec.

Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick stayed away as well after issuing a statement criticizing de Galle for encouraging separatism while he was a guest in Canada.

And he endorsed a favorite separatist slogan by shouting "Vive le Quebec Libre" (Long Live Free Quebec) to a crowd of delighted separatist demonstrators in Montreal Monday.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the dinner, from which all reporters were excluded, Premier Johnson made in a less precise form many of the points General de Gaulle had been making in his emotional meetings across the province with the people of Quebec.

CULT OF LIBERTY

Johnson's text, which had been distributed to the press before General de Gaulle's arrival in Quebec, said that Quebec's people had been faithful to their Franch language and culture against efforts made to mislead them "sometimes in brutal fashion, and

Flying Home After Luncheon

Times News Services

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Pearson said today French President de Gaulle's decision to cut short his Canadian visit is understandable but the circumstances leading to it were not created by the federal government.

A short statement was issued by Mr. Pearson from his office after a 3½-hour cabinet meeting. A spokesman said Gen. de Gaulle's decision to leave the country was communicated to the cabinet, but not discussed.

Key part of Mr. Pearson's statement:

"Gen. de Gaulle's decision to cut short his visit is understandable under the circumstances. But those circumstances, which are not of the government's making, are greatly to be regretted."

President de Gaulle, obviously angered, announced cancellation of the remainder of his Centennial state visit to Canada 15 hours after he was publicly censured by Mr. Pearson last night for espousing the separatist cause in Quebec.

He planned to fly home to Paris after a Montreal city hall luncheon, instead of coming to Ottawa for an official welcome and round of luncheons, talks and dinners. He was to leave Montreal airport this afternoon.

"I haven't had much time for rest," he said with a wry grin.

Decision Was No Surprise

The cabinet reaction was one of general regret and sadness, he said. But the general's decision had not come as a complete surprise.

Separatist MP Giles Gregoire said the French president's decision to fly home was "imposed on him" by Mr. Pearson.

Trade Minister Winters said there was some expectation in the cabinet the president might avoid Ottawa after Mr. Pearson's Tuesday night rebuke.

The trade minister hoped Franco-Canadian relations, however, would remain friendly. He said he "can't imagine" the incident having a detrimental effect on trade relations.

Mr. Winters said that the reaction of the Canadian people, as received in Ottawa, semed to be "overwhelmingly against" an apparent intervention by the French president into a matter of internal Canadian interest.

Ottawa Ministers Boycott Dinner

The general said in Montreal Tuesday night, after Mr. Pearson's rebuke, that he would "rejoice profoundly" if his Canadian visit had been useful to French-language Quebecers. He spoke while proposing a toast to Quebec Premier Johnson, at a dinner boycotted by federal cabinet ministers and Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick.

Gen. de Gaulle was to have arrived on Parliament Hill for a formal welcome to Canada at 5:45 p.m., EDT, today, after having arrived in Quebec Sunday. He was to have left from Ottawa late Thursday after dinner tonight at Government House, a visit to Hull, talks and lunch with Mr. Pearson, and a French embassy reception today.

The departure decision came as no surprise in diplomatic circles and confirmed earlier unofficial reports in Montreal, after the president was told in no uncertain terms Tuesday by Mr. Pearson to stop making undiplomatic remarks while in this country.

An external affairs department official said it was important that the decision to quit Canada was made by the general himself and announced by the French embassy.

The 76-year-old visitor was advised by Prime Minister Pearson that some of his remarks have tended to encourage "the small minority" of separatists who would "destroy Canada."

"As such, they are unacceptable to the Canadian people and its government."

The Pearson statement fell well short of angry demands that Gen. de Gaulle's five-day visit be cancelled.

In fact it expressed the hope that the president would complete

By DON McKEE

DETROIT AP) — National guardsmen and police raked buildings and rubble - strewn streets with machine-gun and small-arms fire today as they battled elusive snipers on Detroit's riot-torn west side.

Dwindling rifle fire replaced the clatter of automatic weapons as the city's third night of racial terror ended.

Ten persons were killed by gunfire, some apparently by accident, as the toll of dead in two days and three nights of strife rose to 33.

Two city policemen and possibly five guardsmen were wounded in pitched battles frequently sparked by the single report of a small weapon or the whine of a bullet.

A national guard tank rumbled over cars drawn across a street in one area and poured bursts of .50-calibre machine-gun bullets into the darkness for more than half an hour after scattered shots struck its side.

HALT TANK

Several blocks away a single shot from a small-calibre rifle halted another tank and within minutes 20 police cars, each carrying four men, pulled up at the scene.

Fusillades from a light machine-gun, rifles and shotguns drew occasional shots, but again the sniper or snipers got away.

Two Negroes were gunned down in their car by guardsmen at a roadblock near a fire department command post. A fire

'Tempest In Teapot'

Then, while sipping tea at a press conference, he summed up his whole attitude to the affair:

POLICE SAY BULLET FIRED AFTER SPEECH

The Montreal Matin, this city's French-language morning newspaper, came out in a front page story claiming the bullet whizzed past de Gaulle's head and lodged itself in the stonework of city hall.

However, a spokesman for the police department said the bullet was fired from directly below the fourth floor, 100 feet to the right of where the French president made his controversial endorsement of the slogan of French - Canadian saparatists, "Long Live Quebec."

Will Incident Provoke Quebec General Election?

MEDICINE HAT (CP)—The Quebec member of parliament for St. Denis, Marcel Prud'homme, has predicted that Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec will call an election as a direct result of President de Gaulle's statements in Montreal.

The Liberal MP said Premier Johnson will try to capitalize on de Gaulle's free-Quebec statements and would make anti-federalism a main election issue.

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean Marchand, federal minister of manpower and immigration, today called on President de Gaulle to "tell us how to replace the $10,000,000,000 worth of American investment in Quebec . . ." which would allow us our independence, and a great thing will have been accomplished."

★ ★ ★

FREDERICTON (CP) — Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick cancelled a trip to Montreal where he was to attend a dinner in honor of President Charles de Gaulle. his Centennial tour and that cordial relations will continue between France and Canada.

De Gaulle arrived on the French cruiser Colbert at Quebec City Sunday, then drove to Montreal Monday along a 180-mile route ablaze with the French tricolor.

In Montreal, he compared scenes along the route to those of the liberation of France, spoke of a "liberated" Quebec, and used the politically potent separatist slogan:

"Long live free Quebec."

The Pearson statement said stiffly that thousands of Canadians died in two world wars to liberate France.

"Every province in Canada is free," it said. "Canadians do not need to be liberated."

Federal cabinet ministers supposed to meet Gen. de Gaulle on his arrival at Expo 67 Tuesday were called back to Ottawa, where the statement was drafted in two emergency cabinet sessions.

The French leader made no more abraisive remarks as he toured nine pavilions at Expo Tuesday, in sunny weather, with groups of placard-bearing separatists popping up constantly among the crowds.

Damage Had Already Been Done

However the damage had been done.

During his Expo visit minor problem to the hordes of policemen—RCMP, Montreal city police, Expo security and provincial police—was a few scattered slogan-shouters and placard-wavers.

At least 25 were arrested and were to appear in municipal court today on charges of disturbing the peace or carrying signs. A bylaw passed especially for Expo by the city of Montreal forbids demonstrations and placard-carrying on the site.

Among those arrested was French-speaking man who ran alongside the general's car at one point, shouting: "Assassin, assassin, assassin."

Later, an Algerian who arrived in Canada a few days ago was charged with disturbing the peace.

Nearly 1,000 telegrams had poured into Prime Minister Pearson's office within 24 hours of the Montreal speech, all protesting it. The prime minister's switchboard was kept busy with angry callers as well.

The French president made the decision late Tuesday night, some hours after the public rebuke by Prime Minister Pearson.

Maurice Couve de Murville, the French foreign minister, conveyed the news to Jules Leger, Canada's ambassador to France. Both men were travelling with the president.

Mr. Leger notified Marcel Cadieux, the undersecretary of state for external affairs and he called Mary Macdonald, special assistant to the prime minister at 1:30 a.m. EDT today.

Pearson Notified at 6 a.m.

It was decided not to awaken the prime minister, who had had a heavy day over the developing diplomatic crisis. He was telephoned by a staff member at 6 a.m. at his official residence in the capital.

The French party offered no explanation for the move when the news was passed along to the Canadians.

A Gaullist member of the French National Assembly, Xavier Deniau, who is travelling with the president, charged this morning that Mr. Pearson's rebuke of last night had been meant to provoke President de Gaulle's return to France.

"I think that was the intent of the note in question. It was for that reason that it was done," he said.

Mr. Deniau is a member of the France-Canada parliamentary group. General de Gaulle's ast day in Quebec began this morning with a visit to Montreal's subway, after which he received a warm and dignified welcome by professors and students at the University of Montreal.

General de Gaulle praised the university for assuming "at the highest level of philosophy, letters and science the mission of maintaining and making flourish the French culture which otherwise would be submerged little by little by another."

'. . . De Gaulle Has Said It'

Before he appeared on the steps of the university Hall of Honor, there were chants of "Free Quebec, de Gaulle has said it," by members of the Reassemblement Pour L'Independence Nationale.

Diplomats described the Pearson statement as "strongly worded" when it is realized that it was a stern public rebuke by the prime minister to the French president for the latter's statements while on Canadian soil. Drafting the toughly worded statement, the Canadian cabinet had to take into regard that if it was "too tough" the unpredictable general migh leave Canada in a huff and take the French ambassador with him.

If the French president had been provoked into that action, it was altogether possible he might also have closed down the French embassy in Ottawa and opened up a French embassy in Quebec City. These possibilities the cabinet kept in mind as it wrestled with the preparation of the statement, which at first was "very tough," then moderated and then revised and strengthened with more diplomatic language, according to informed sources.

'De Gaulle Spoke Deliberately'

PARIS (UPI)—Some Frenchmen seemed embarrassed by President de Gaulle's performance in Quebec.

The influential newspaper Le Monde used strong language to condemn "this brutal raid" on Canadian affairs.

Few commentators believed de Gaulle had not seriously planned the Quebec remarks and many thought he did so merely to anger the British and Americans.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 26, 1967—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

Today I have a message for you from a French-Canadian friend of mine.

Her name is Pauline Houle and she lives and works in Montreal as a journaliste for a French-language publication called "La Canadienne". She is sharp, bright and knowledgeable; and today, she is in no mood to mince words about the affaire de Gaulle.

Here is what she had to say when I asked her by long-distance telephone to tell Victorians how she reacted to the utterances of the visitor who has whipped up a coast-to-coast tempest:

"I am very mad!

"This de Gaulle, we count him a senile old man. There is nothing we want from him or from France—nothing whatever.

"We are much more advanced than the French. Here in Quebec we are wealthy now, and making such progress as we never have before. You may be sure that is why he loves us.

"The students, they are the same everywhere. They live on excitement and they are always ready to make a big noise. But my friends and I are adult, and we are scared: we don't want a Cuba here."

★

Let me explain that to Mlle. Houle as to every true Montrealer, the Quebec that signifies is her own proudly revitalized city, the home of Expo, the industrial heartland and the centre of French-Canadian culture. It was the outlands that gave Daniel Johnson the premier's chair, not Jean Drapeau's Montreal.

"You ask me why Premier Johnson staged this de Gaulle presentation? His government has done little — hasn't even voted the money for September education — and he is afraid of losing the next election. He is making a play for the young vote.

"But believe me, my fellow-citizens are very mad about this, mad and ashamed.

"He (de Gaulle) doesn't understand the Quebec mentality. He is not well-informed, and the welcome along the highway deluded him. There is, of course, a great deal of sentiment there, because we were French in the beginning.

"But he did not understand that. He listened to the cheering and thought he was being hailed as a liberator.

"If there is a mistake he made in this world, this is it.

"Naturally, there has been much talk about this in the Expo press-room. I was informed there that Mayor Drapeau is also very mad.

★

At this point, I suggested to our incensed Canadienne that other ideas might prevail in the Quebec that lies beyond the Montreal perimeter. She brushed the notion aside.

"The French-Canadian won't have any one telling him what to do," she insisted, her tone as vehement as her words. "We don't need France, although it appears that France needs us. Quebec is better in all ways than France!

"The thinking man and woman in this province has no wish to separate from Canada. We have good exchanges now, and much more understanding of each other. We cannot let this incident change that."

We had been talking quite some time — or rather Pauline Houle had been talking, and except for a question or two, I had been listening.

Now I asked her if she could summarize her feelings on the matter for the people of this city.

"Please tell them not to worry," she said. "In spite of the Separatistes, we French Canadians have never been so close as we are this year to the rest of you. Don't let this disturb the relationship."

So speaks one fervent Canadian, and despite present provocation, I hope you will keep her message in mind.

AS THE CROW FLIES it's not far from Victoria's SPCA shelter to the wilderness but you can't prove it by Harry. He likes the urban life. He was brought to SPCA with a broken wing. It's healed now but Harry stays on with SPCA worker Mrs. Rita Gieskens, following her about and perching on her shoulder when she pauses. It's a sadder life for the two fawns at right. Well meaning people picked them up in remote areas and brought them to the SPCA not realizing that fawns in the woods are seldom deserted. Their mom was probably looking on when they were kidnapped. Magistrate Withdraws From Case

Magistrate William Ostler today withdrew from the trial of cashier Elizabeth Ewen, who is charged with seven counts of theft under $50.

He said he would treat the trial so far as a preliminary hearing and commit the accused for trial in a higher court.

Mrs. Ewen, 41, of 290 Homer, pleaded not guilty to stealing sums of money from the city of Victoria between May 24 and June 5 of this year.

At the conclusion of the Crown's case, Magistrate Ostler pointed out the accused was employed in the magistrate's clerk's department and is indirectly under the magistrate's direction.

"The principals are too closely connected with the magistrate for me to fairly decide the case.

"Justice must be seen to be done," he added.

In Tuesday's hearing the Crown alleged the accused had taken fines from people and had said the tickets could not be rung through the machine. Witnesses said they had paid fines and had received receipts marked "Pd." in pen with the amount of the fine written in.

NOT AVAILABLE

Files were checked and all the tickets referred to in the charges had been received in court but office copies were not available, said Neil McLeod, the court's accounting clerk.

Donald Fuller, cash register service manager said he had never heard of a cashier having trouble in inserting tickets into the two machines at the courthouse. He received only one trouble call and that involved a key.

SURVEY VESSEL TOWED OUT OF ALASKA ICE

Aquariums Sparring For Killer Whale Caught Off Island

By TERRY IZZARD

Hasty discussions were going on in Vancouver between governors of the city aquarium.

Mr. Macki discovered the killer in his purse seine net in the early hours.

While the Vancouver interests were deciding whether to make an offer, a representative of Marine Land in Los Angeles flew in this morning.

12 FEET LONG

Mr. Penfold said the whale is a youngster 12 feet long and weighing about a ton.

Vancouver has good reasons for wanting the mammal since it already has one in its dolphin pool.

Two were sold to San Diego aquarium. One of the two remaining kept by Mr. Griffin has since died.

ONE DIED

The whale craze began in 1955 when the first ever captured on the west coast went on show in Vancouver.

Affectionately known as Moby Doll, the big pet died a few months after capture.

Next to be captured was Namu, named after the B.C. village near where she was caught off northern Vancouver Island.

One thing proved by the four whales in captivity is that they are easy to train.

Vancouver's Skana will obey verbal commands and already performs a variety of tricks.

Whether they can survive the restrictions of captivity for long has yet to be determined.

Of the latest catch Mr. Penfold said: "She (or he) seemed quite docile. She was just swimming around in the net making no attempt to escape."

B.C. Saves $4 Million On Early Dam Finish

13 Months Ahead Of Pact Deadline

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

The first Columbia Treaty dam is full of water and will be declared formally operational on Monday to save British Columbia $4 million, Premier Bennett announced today.

He released a letter from B.C. Hydro co-chairman Dr. Hugh Keenleyside which said the moment the dam is declared operational the province will receive $12 million from the U.S. in agreed flood control benefits.

The official acceptance of the completed dam will be 13 months ahead of the treaty's deadline and eight months ahead of the negotiated sale agreement of downstream power to U.S. utilities.

The extra interest earnings of the earlier flood control payment and extra power sales will produce a net financial advantage to the province of almost $4 million, reducing the estimated $33.3 million cost of the Duncan Dam to $29 million, Dr. Keenleyside wrote.

DIRECT BENEFIT

Besides the money bonus coming from early completion of the purely-storage dam, B.C. itself already has benefited directly.

"The accelerated construction program permitted the Duncan project to store water during the recent flood season with the result that the level of Kootenay Lake was reduced by approximately two feet and the level of the Columbia River at Trail by approximately one foot during the peak of the 1967 floods," Dr. Keenleyside observed.

He added that the better control of annual runoff will increase power generation on the B.C. side of the border as well at the Cominco and West Kootenay companies' plants on the Kootenay River.

NO LOSS OF LIFE

B.C. Hydro will receive half the benefits of the increased power production at these private Canadian plants under the same general formula applying to U.S. downstream plants.

"I am particularly happy to be able to inform you that the Duncan Dam has been constructed without any loss of human life," Dr. Keenleyside added.

"It is not exaggerating to describe this as a quite phenomenal record. We know of no other comparable project of which it can be said."

Premir Bennett said he was gratified by the report but would make no comments on indications that the High Arrow dam near Castlegar also is about half a year ahead of treaty deadlines and may be storing water too this fall.

"I just want to talk about the Duncan today," he said. "One step at a time."

$500 Bonuses Paid 8,800 Home-Buyers

About $4.4 million has been paid out so far in the new $500 home-acquisition grants.

Premeir Bennett's finance department is issuing cheques at an average rate of $150,000 a day.

Mr. Bennett told a press conference today he is "greatly pleased" with the response to the grants scheme he introduced to the legislature last spring.

"Already 8,800 citizens of our province have received the home acquisition grant," he said.

"We have lots of further applications and they are being finally processed—the cheques going out—at an average of 300 a day."

He said it was clear that most applicants thoroughly understood the qualifications for receiving the grant because the processing report shows a rejection rate of only five per cent on applications.

OVER ESTIMATES

The figures indicate that the home-acquisition grant applications have outstripped maximum expectations this year.

Under the legislation, a $25 million fund was set up which was expected to produce annual interest income of about $1.5 million to cover the applications but Premier Bennett said the principal would be used if necessary to meet demands higher than this.

Next year, the grants are to go to $525 under a system of 5 per cent annual increments to keep pace with rising home-building costs and inflation but, because they are once-in-a-lifetime grants, the number of applications likely will decrease sharply in the second and succeeding years.

'Guest' Pays Fine of $50

An unwelcome guest was fined $50 in central court today when he pleaded guilty to causing wilful damage.

He went to visit an occupant at 1342 Esquimalt Road and when she refused to see him he went to the front of the building and smashed the window.

He was also ordered to make restitution of $30 for the damage.

'LAND VALUES DICTATE IT'

Harbor Development Economic Necessity

By JIM HUME

The development of Victoria's waterfront between Johnson Street and the Causeway is essential if the city is to remain the economic hub of southern Victoria Island.

City manager Dennis Young said this morning that whatever decision city council ultimately makes on the location of a convention centre the waterfront problem must remain of prime concern.

One would see the centre located on Wharf Street as part of an urban renewal scheme designed to face-lift the area bounded by Johnson Street, Government, Wharf Street and the Causeway.

The other, a private development, would see the centre located in a downtown block bounded by Douglas, Pandora, Cormorant and Blanshard.

NEED DRASTIC ACTION

"Land values alone dictate that we must do something drastic in the waterfront area," said Mr. Young. "Along Government Street land assessments average around $12 per square foot but go as high as $58 per square foot.

"By comparision assessment values between Johnson Street and the Causeway along Wharf run as low as 81.73 cents a square foot.

"We just have to do something to bring that entire area into reasonable line as simple economic necessity. At present the assessed values do not even pay for the services in the area."

In a survey prepared for the city last month waterfront property between Yates and the Causeway showed a total assessment of $2.07 per square foot.

Of that the total land assessment is rated at 83 cents a square foot and the improvement assessment at $1.24.

"Compare that with the $58.68 per square foot total assessment for the property on which the post office stands and you get an idea of the seriousness of the situation," Mr. Young said.

"If Victoria is to maintain its role as the core of this entire area we just have to up-grade the waterfront between Johnson Street and the Causeway."

A driver who walked uninjured from the car he had flipped over was fined a total of $385 in central court today.

George Berry, 18, of HMCS Qu'Appelle, pleaded guilty to impaired driving and being a minor in possession of liquor.

Court was told that Berry grazed a power pole while driving west on Skinner Ave. The car then struck a garage, slammed through a hedge and landed upside down on a lawn.

The accused admitted he had been drinking.

De Gaulle Flies Home
No Apology to Canada

Pearson Rebuke Angers President

Times News Services

MONTREAL — French President Charles de Gaulle, displaying a majestic calm in the eye of the political hurricane he had brewed in Canada, flew home this afternoon after abruptly cancelling a scheduled visit to Ottawa and a meeting with Prime Minister Pearson.

The 76-year-old French president departed in his personal DC-8 jet after four days of a scheduled five-day visit during which his endorsement of French-Canadian separatist sentiment brought a sharp, formal rebuke from Pearson.

President de Gaulle, obviously angered, announced cancellation of the remainder of his Centennial state visit to Canada 15 hours after he was publicly censured.

De Gaulle fired a few parting salvoes at a lunch in the Montreal city hall, the site of his climatic shouting of "Long live a free Quebec" which led to Pearson's reply that Canada did not need to be liberated.

"There has been a sort of comprehension in this trip that neither you nor I could avoid," de Gaulle told an audience which included Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau and Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson.

"It was elementary. We were seized by it. I think it is necessary to go to the bottom of things where the destiny of a people is involved—French-Canadian or Canadian French as you wish—to go to the bottom of things is the only policy that will help us."

Preferable to Cancel Ottawa Trip

Prime Minister Pearson in Ottawa, following a cabinet meeting this morning, said that "General de Gaulle's decision to cut short his visit to Canada is understandable under the circumstances but those circumstances, which are not of the government's making, are greatly to be regretted."

De Gaulle himself said nothing publicly of why he had cut short his state visit but a French spokesman said:

"I may confirm that, on account of the stand taken by the Prime Minister of Canada, it has been held preferable to cancel the Ottawa trip and proceed to Paris."

De Gaulle's manner at the airport was calm and measured but he made no apology and, in fact, said obliquely that the tempest over his speeches was of no consequence in the long view of things.

"My wishes are with you as I leave," he concluded. "I would like when I have left that you keep the idea that de Gaulle in Quebec, a Quebec master of itself, can have contributed to your progress."

The only member of the federal government to see de Gaulle off was Lionel Chevrier, the commissioner general for state visits. Mayor Drapeau and Premier Johnson bade the president and Madame de Gaulle goodbye with only a crowd of a few hundred, mostly newsmen and airport employees, looking on.

Mr. Pearson declined to answer any reporters' questions after the long cabinet meeting. He walked quickly to his car waiting outside Parliament Hill's East Block.

"I haven't had much time for rest," he said with a wry grin.

Decision Was No Surprise

The cabinet reaction was one of general regret and sadness, said a cabinet source. But the general's decision had not come as a complete surprise.

Trade Minister Winters said there was some expectation in the cabinet the president might avoid Ottawa after Mr. Pearson's Tuesday night rebuke.

The trade minister hoped Franco-Canadian relations, however, would remain friendly. He said he "can't imagine" the incident having a detrimental effect on trade relations.

Mr. Winters said that the reaction of the Canadian people, as received in Ottawa, semed to be "overwhelmingly against" an apparent intervention by the French president into a matter of internal Canadian interest.

The general said in Montreal Tuesday night, after Mr. Pear-

Gen. de Gaulle waved from his limousine to the swelling crowd at city hall. At least three signs of a separatist group, le Rassemblement de l'Independence Nationale, were held high.

Text of Statement By Prime Minister

"I am sure that Canadians in all parts of our country were pleased when the president of France received such a warm welcome in Quebec.

"However, certain statements by the president tend to encourage the small minority of our population whose aim is to destroy Canada; and, as such, they are unacceptable to the Canadian people and its government.

"The people of Canada are free. Every province of Canada is free. Canadians do not need to be liberated. Indeed, many thousands of Canadians gave their lives in two world wars in the liberation of France and other European countries.

"Canada will remain united and will reject any effort to destroy her unity.

"Canada has always had a special relationship with France, the motherland of so many of her citizens. We attach the greatest importance to our friendship with the French people. It has been, and remains, the strong purpose of the government of Canada to foster that friendship.

"I hope that my discussions later this week with General de Gaulle will demonstrate that this purpose is one which he shares."

'Departure Understandable . . . Circumstances Regretted'

His statement follows:

"The Canadian government has been informed that General de Gaulle is not coming to Ottawa as planned and will be returning immediately to Paris by air after the completion of today's program in Montreal.

"General de Gaulle's decision to cut short his visit to Canada is understandable under the circumstances. But those circumstances, which are not of the government's making, are greatly to be regretted."

Lionel Chevrier, commissioner general for visits of heads of state, will be on hand to say "Goodbye" to General de Gaulle when he flies from Montreal to France.

Happy to Have Helped Quebec . . . de Gaulle

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Bureau

MONTREAL — President Charles de Gaulle's response late Tuesday to a diplomatic rebuke by Prime Minister Pearson sharpened the direct confrontation between the two leaders.

After Mr. Pearson said that statements by President de Gaulle encouraging Quebec separatism were "unacceptable to the Canadian people and its government," the president took the first opportunity that offered itself to say that he was very happy with what he believed his Quebec visit had achieved.

"Neither you nor I have wasted out time," he told Premier Daniel Johnson at a dinner ending his three full days in Quebec.

"Perhaps something has happened," he said.

And he added that "if on this occasion the president of the republic has been able to be of use to the Frenchmen of Quebec he will be very deeply happy."

Federal cabinet ministers, including External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who had been on the original guest list, did not attend the dinner in France's Expo pavilion in honor of the government of Quebec.

Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick stayed away as well after issuing a statement criticizing de Galle for encouraging separatism while he was a guest in Canada.

And he endorsed a favorite separatist slogan by shouting "Vive le Quebec Libre" (Long Live Free Quebec) to a crowd of delighted separatist demonstrators in Montreal Monday.

Death Toll Now 33 In Detroit Rioting

By DON McKEE

DETROIT AP) — National guardsmen and police raked buildings and rubble-strewn streets with machine-gun and small-arms fire today as they battled elusive snipers on Detroit's riot-torn west side.

Dwindling rifle fire replaced the clatter of automatic weapons as the city's third night of racial terror ended.

Ten persons were killed by gunfire, some apparently by accident, as the toll of dead in two days and three nights of strife rose to 33.

Two city policemen and possibly five guardsmen were wounded in pitched battles frequently sparked by the single report of a small weapon or the whine of a bullet.

A national guard tank rumbled over cars drawn across a street in one area and poured bursts of .50-calibre machine-gun bullets into the darkness for more than half an hour after scattered shots struck its side.

HALT TANK

Several blocks away a single shot from a small-calibre rifle halted another tank and within minutes 20 police cars, each carrying four men, pulled up at the scene.

Fusillades from a light machine-gun, rifles and shotguns drew occasional shots, but again the sniper or snipers got away.

POLICE SAY BULLET FIRED AFTER SPEECH

The Montreal Matin, this city's French-language morning newspaper, came out in a front page story claiming the bullet whizzed past de Gaulle's head and lodged itself in the stonework of city hall.

However, a spokesman for the police department said the bullet was fired from directly below the fourth floor, 100 feet to the right of where the French president made his speech.

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — While the British government trod softly around the prickly issue, Britain's national newspapers today loosed a near-unanimous flood of condemnation upon French President de Gaulle for his flirtation with Quebec separatism.

Editorial writers pulled out a drawerful of adjectives—rude, ill-advised, astounding, alarming—to describe his espousal of the "Free Quebec" cry in a Montreal speech Monday.

Cartoonists lampooned the general as a modern-day William of Normandy, the Conqueror; as a transatlantic French revolutionary and as a belated rescuer of the defeated Montcalm.

CANADA'S CONCERN

Wilson, in the Commons, told a questioner that events in Canada "are matters for the Canadian government and not for me."

Likewise, the official foreign spokesman deadpanned a "no comment" when asked at his press briefing whether the British government now would strengthen the Channel Islands, off the French coast.

The press lambasted the French chief of government in one of the fiercest concentrations of criticism upon the head of a friendly nation unleashed here in a long time.

A theme of the strictures is that Gaullist Anglophobia has burst out again, tangled up with such elements as pride of French ancestry and the general's long - standing fixation over American "domination." Some writers consider he was taking a backhander at the United States.

On this theme, the mass-circulation Daily Mirror headlines its editorial "A sad performance," but it adds:

"He is behaving outrageously by meddling in the internal affairs of the country where he is a guest."

Even The Financial Times drops its customary preoccupation with business to devote its lead editorial to de Gaulle, calling his performance "nothing less than astounding."

Many of his own people, it adds, "are unlikely to support a policy of stirring up trouble indiscriminately."

The Guardian heads its editorial, "De Gaulle beyond the fringe," and observes that he "wants to go on tilting at Anglo-Saxon windmills as long as he lives."

The Times pictured the incident as part of "the long, sad process of the general's erratic decline." It said he "was a very great man but is not now a very sensible one." He had offended a friend — Canada — without weakening the enemy of his dreams—the U.S.

Another 'Sinister' Plot To Weaken Ties With U.S.

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — President de Gaulle's playing to the French-Canadian gallery is seen here as another sinister Gaullist plot to attack the U.S. — in this case to weaken Canadian ties with its neighbor.

That's a main implication in the heavy press coverage being given the French president despite such distractions as the Detroit riot, worst in U.S. history.

"With the unerring accuracy of a sadistic dentist, Charles de Gaulle has drilled straight to the most sensitive nerve in Canada's domestic anatomy, and has proceeded to probe it gleefully at every possible occasion during his current official visit," says The Evening Star editorially.

"Having fanned the flames of insurrection, the French president did his best to disrupt the extraordinary friendship that exists between the U.S. and Canada. Canadians, he warned, mus find ways to protect their independence from contamination from Canada's colossal neighbor to the south."

It concludes by saying de Gaulle "did not however suggest what Canada should do about nutty foreign visitors who take it on themselves to meddle in Canada's internal affairs."

The Washington Post, in a dispatch from Paris, says de Gaulle's comments has aroused some concern there in political circles and "the consensus appears to be that de Gaulle's words are aimed less at Ottawa than at Washington."

It says de Gaulle "seems to have ticketed the Ottawa government as a mere emanation of the U.S., if only because 80 per cent of the foreign investment there comes from the U.S."

. . . HAPPY

which all reporters were excluded, Premier Johnson made in a less precise form many of the points General de Gaulle had been making in his emotional meetings across the province with the people of Quebec.

CULT OF LIBERTY

Johnson's text, which had been distributed to the press before General de Gaulle's arrival in Quebec, said that Quebec's people had been faithful to their Franch language and culture against efforts made to mislead them "sometimes in brutal fashion, and sometimes with an insistance more subtle".

He said Quebec had also inherited from France the "cult of liberty".

"We would no longer be French if we were not devoted to liberty," he said, "not only individual liberty but collective liberty."

Johnson said that the people of Quebec believed that "all nations, small or great, have the right to live and to the mastery of their destiny."

He said France and General de Gaulle had been champions of liberty.

"If there is one country which cannot be accused of imperialistic aims," he maintained, "it is France, which has led so many young nations to the fullness of sovereignty."

Despite the striking similarity between his speech of Tuesday evening and the statements that have been making headlines for General de Gaulle, Johnson has been shying away from making any comment on the general's controversial headlines.

He just smiles and ducked away Tuesday when reporters buttonholed him at Expo and asked him what he thought of the president's Montreal speech Monday.

Other members of the cabinet have also refused to commit themselves by as much as a word.

SUPRRISED

One man who was as much surprised as anybody, but also frankly delighted, was Pierre Bourgault, president of the dominant separatist party, The Rassemblement Pour L'independance Nationale.

"I had no idea he would go anything like as far as that" Mr. Bourgault said.

The separatist leader said the real importance of General de Gaulle shouting "Vive Le Quebec Libre," was in the public reaction that followed it.

"What counts is not that he said it, but that thousands cheered him," Mr. Bourgault contended.

"And thousands of people who would not have dared to whisper such a phrase themselves until now, have taken on a completely new outlook."

Mr. Bourgault predicted that English-speaking Canadians would react with a sudden hardening toward the French-speaking.

He felt this reaction could only speed up the separation of Quebec from Canada but also increased the danger that the separation would be violent.

Arrested Man 'Well'

LONDON (Reuters)—Anthony Grey, Reuters news agency correspondent in Peking who has been placed under house arrest by the Chinese authorities, is well and in good spirits, say reliable reports reaching here Tuesday.

IZMIR, Turkey (AP) — Pope Paul turned today from the diplomatic and unity aspects of his trip to Turkey to visit the early Christian shrines of Izmir and nearby Ephesus.

It was at Ephesus that the apostle Paul, from whom the Pope took his papal name, issued one of his greatest epistles. According to some Roman Catholic tradition, the Virgin Mary lived there towards the end of her life.

Pope Paul, the first Roman Catholic pontiff to visit Turkey in 1,200 years, flew in a Turkish airliner from Istanbul on the Bosporus to Cigli, a military base just outside Izmir.

The top religious leaders of the various faiths in Turkey, Moslem, Christian and Jewish, saw him off on his pilgrimage. The Pope and Patriarch Athenagoras of the Orthodox Church embraced twice for the kiss of peace in farewell.
